INDONESIAN MAKES APPEAL TO GOD . . .

Sukarno Says Internal Strife Will Sink Nation

Jakarta, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno warned Sunday that if internal strife continues in this country, Indonesia will sink. He reported that he had appealed to God for help soon after a coup against him failed Oct. 1.

Sukarno made the remarks in a speech at a ceremony in the presidential palace to commemorate the anniversary of the ascension of the prophet Mohammed. He noted that historian Arnold Toynbee wrote that a great civilization never goes down unless it destroys itself.

Indonesia will suffer this fate, Sukarno went on, if "we continue to fight, slander, kill, destroy and hate each other."

He was referring to the army-led anti-communist campaign which has been going on in the country since the attempt to overthrow Sukarno failed.

"If a nation has torn itself without any enemy, it sinks," Sukarno declared, and appealed for an end to the struggle between Indonesians.

He declared the country's internal toubles have lessened Indonesian prestige in the Afro-Asian world:

"Other countries of Africa and Asia earlier considered us a beacon of the new emerging forces. But Subandrio (first deputy prime minister) has told me that our beacon has been fading recently — the beacon which earlier gave light to the world."

Murdering Each Other

He said he cried and appealed to God soon after the Oct. 1 communist coup attempt. He said he was upset because Indonesian people were murdering each other.

"I asked God 'Oh God, please help me and guide me;" he declared. "God didn't grant me a miracle as he did to prophet Mohammed and other prophets like Moses, Christ and Abraham because I am only an ordinary human being like you.

"But I asked God for guidance and now God has fulfilled my petition. God gave me inspiration and that inspiration is to study the history and revolutions of other races."

He said he has started to read many history books, including one about the activities of the American Central Intelligence Agency and one by Toynbee.

Psychiatrist Will Be Cross-Examined

Defense witness Dr. John Baldwin will be cross-examined by prosecution attorneys Monday as the Duane Pope bank robber murder trial enters its fourth week.

Dr. Baldwin, a Lincoln psychiatrist, told a Federal District Court jury before the weekend that Pope suffered from "an acute reaction" and is thus not responsible for the June 4th bank robbery at Big Springs in which three employes were shot to death and a fourth wounded.

The stress of graduation from McPherson (Kan.) College and the "prospect of being thrust into a world with which Pope was unable to cope brought on the breakdown," Dr. Baldwin said.

U.S. Attorney Theodore Richling, the government's chief prosecutor in the case, was granted a continuance until Monday on his cross-examination on Baldwin.

Time Needed

Richling told presiding Judge Robert Van Pelt Friday the prosecution needed sufficient time to examine material on which Dr. Baldwin partially based his opinion of Pope's mental condition.

The prosecutor also alleged that there had been certain "inconsistencies" between testimony given by the psychiatrist and the defendant.

Attorneys Robert Crosby and Wallace Rudolph further hoped to strengthen their insanity defense of the 22-year-old Roxbury, Kan., man with the testimony of Dr. Herbert Modlin, a psychiatrist associated with the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan.

Examined

Both psychiatrists and Lincoln psychologist Dr. Elianora Brassard have examined the accused slayer during his pre-trial stay at the Nebraska Penal Complex.

The government's request to have mental experts examine Pope have been granted by Judge Van Pelt. Richling contended that Pope planned the holdup deliberately and with premeditation.

Judge Van Pelt has announced that court will not be held on Thanksgiving Day. He said the trial will likely run into the week of Nov. 29th.

Cabin Home Blaze Kills 7 Children

Sunbury, Pa. (AP) — Seven children were killed in a fire and their parents were mysteriously wounded by a shotgun blast Saturday night in their log house in Herndon, near this south central Pennsylvania community, state police reported.

Paul Bordner, 38, the father, said the first indication of trouble at his rural home was a shotgun blast. Asked who might have fired the gun, he said:

"It's beyond me. All I know is it was a shotgun."

State police at nearby Shamokin said the fire broke out Saturday night in the Bordner's one and one-half story log house at Herndon, R. D. Northumberland County, 15 miles south of here.

State police reported that the father suffered shotgun pellet wounds of the arm and had been treated at Sunbury Community Hospital and discharged.

In addition to the mother, Mary, 39, who state police said had been wounded, those admitted to the hospital and their condition were Harold, 17, critical; Marlene, 15, poor; Kenneth, 14, fair; Virginia, 12, fair; Kathy, 10, fair, and Shirley, nine, fair.

The children whose bodies were recovered today were identified as Cindy, 10; Jerry, nine; Steven, six; Roger, five; Ruby, three; John, three and Erich, one.

State police said they are investigating the fire and the shotgun wounds received by Bordner and his wife.

Botany Students Learn By Observing In Dr. John Davidson's Class At NU

By JOHN DeFRAIN
Star Staff Writer

"They gave us a garden bean plant," said University of Nebraska freshman Mick Lowe, "and told us to write all we could about it. I think we all felt a little bit like Aristotle."

Lowe was referring to Associate Prof. John Davidson's Botany 1 class. Aristotle, the Greek philosopher and biologist, was one of the earliest observers of the facts of nature.

As in Aristotle's time, there are no textbooks to fall back on in Dr. Davidson's class. Students learn by observation.

"We encourage them to discover things and probably 75 of the kids get a bang out of it," he says. Discovery helps to keep learning from being "a distasteful experience."

"In most classes; they tell students what they're going to see; show them; ask them what they saw, and tell them what they saw. This takes all the fun out of it. "It's like giving a kid a Christmas present and telling him what's inside before he rips it open," he said.

Too Much Value

Another reason he abandoned the traditional science teaching methods about 1951 for the ancient way is that students put too much value on what the book has to say.

In "The American Biology Teacher" he wrote of a high school physics class he once observed:

"The teacher was demonstrating the electromotive series, using a jar of electrolyte on his table, a series of metallic electrodes, and a huge voltmeter that could be read easily by all the students. The metals were introduced into the bath, and the class read the voltage from the meter and entered the reading in their notebooks.

"This went along very nicely until, in one demonstration the meter read 1.9 volts. The teacher checked the metals, washed them off, and returned them to the bath—still, 1.9 volts registered on the voltmeter. The teacher was obviously disturbed, and finally announced that the reading should have been 1.1 volts, whereupon the students immediately erased the 1.9 and dutifully wrote in the 1.1 value.

"My thought at the time was, 'Is this teaching science? Here are these students being taught to overlook the evidence of their own senses in favor of the authoritative dictum of the teacher. Is this scientific?' "

Effective

His answer was obviously no, and from that time students learn botany from the plant itself. The method proves effective, for according to Dr. Davidson, "Almost every year someone finds something in these plants that I haven't noticed."

And if the plant has a part the textbook doesn't recognize, the plant wins, hands (or petals) down.

Dr. Davidson's students are rather prejudiced about his method. Said Miss Vondra Shaw, "I like his class . . . of course I don't know about the other one."

"This class is an adventure," said sophomore Julie Morris. "After you discover things for yourself, you remember them. It's fun."

The lab assistant was one of the few who didn't like her first botany course under Davidson. "I didn't think I was learning anything, but in later classes I found out how much I knew. Most botany majors are that because of his class."

Complaint

One girl stated that she liked to learn in school, and concluded with "I don't like to memorize."

One of the few complaints that arose was from a boy who thought the three-hour lab was too long. "We could see this stuff in half an hour," he said. "Why in the first 15 minutes I saw what everybody else saw in 60."

North Viet Regulars Renew Ia Drang Fight With Cavalry

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP) — North Vietnamese army regulars carried the bitter battle of Ia Drang Valley into its second week while Viet Cong guerrillas mounted attacks elsewhere Monday.

The North Viet Nam regulars clashed with 500 U.S. 1st Cavalry Division troops Sunday in light to moderate fighting. Briefing officers said they had no immediate report on casualties.

U.S. B52 jet bombers from Guam hammered Red positions near the battle area in the central highlands between Plei Me and the Cambodian border 220 miles north of Saigon. Their attack Sunday was the 12th in a week.

Naval Support

A Viet Cong force estimated at regiment strength attacked a unit of South Vietnamese rangers about 120 miles south of Da Nang Monday, a U.S. military spokesman reported. He said naval gun fire was called in to support the rangers. There was no report on casualties.

A U.S. security force at a helicopter airfield 95 miles southeast of Saigon suffered light casualties when guerrillas fired 20 mortar rounds on their camp, a U.S. military spokesman said. He added a few helicopters were damaged.

Closer to Saigon, troops of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division hurled back a Viet Cong attack on the edge of the communist-infested D Zone. A division spokesman said 40 Viet Cong guerrillas were killed and U.S. casualties were light. Ten American vehicles were damaged.

Distant Attack

The infantry division troops fell under attack while on a road convoy 40 miles north of Saigon. Briefing officers did not describe the attack as an ambush, saying the guerrillas opened fire from great distances with mortars and automatic weapons.

During the clash, U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers destroyed a village where the Viet Cong held their positions.

The renewed fighting in the Ia Drang Valley took place only a few miles from where a Vietnamese paratroop task force battled with the communists Saturday night. The government forces said they killed 180 North Vietnamese and suffered light casualties themselves.

This would raise to 1,952 the number of communists killed by Americans and South Vietnamese in the central highlands since the communists attacked the special forces camp at Plei Me last month.

Cheering Welcome

Troops of the 1st Cavalry's 2nd Battalion of the 7th Regiment returned to their base camp at An Khe, where they received a cheering welcome from other troops in the division. The 2nd Battalion was the first to meet the North Vietnamese regulars in Ia Drang Valley a week ago and it suffered perhaps the heaviest casualties of any single unit in the fighting.

MISHAP NEAR GIBBON FATAL TO 3-YEAR-OLD

Gibbon (AP)—A three-year-old girl was killed Sunday afternoon when she was run over by a pickup driven by her stepfather in a field on their farm northeast of Gibbon.

Deputy Buffalo County Sheriff Dale Sautter identified the little girl as Della Sue Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Scott.

Sautter said Scott was driving a pickup pulling a trailer loaded with wire and the little girl was riding on the trailer with two other children. A budle of wire fell off the trailer and Scott backed up to the wire roll.

Lincolnites Challenged At Dedication Of Center

Lincolnites were challenged to "keep pace" with social service needs Sunday as the new Lincoln Center for Community Services at 15th and N was dedicated formally.

Speaking at the ceremony, Frank H. Woods of Chicago said it was the "promise of better social services" that moved the Woods Charitable Fund to donate the $1.3 million to erect the structure. Woods is secretary-treasurer of the fund.

"Our current aspirations exceed our ability to deliver," Woods said, saying the physical plants of social agencies are "in second class condition," that "no agency has enough money" to meet real needs, and that agencies must not try to "meet today's problems with yesterday's programs."

Dollar A Year

The Woods Fund donated the cost of the building to the Lincoln Foundation, which holds title and leases the building to the Lincoln Community Chest for a dollar a year. The Chest handles the leasing of space in the building to community agencies at a cost that will maintain the building and provide a fund for repairs.

Woods also urged support for the Lincoln Foundation as a way to "dedicate capital" to "changing needs" in the social service field, saying a good foundation would have the ability to change with the needs.

Gov. Frank Morrison told the business and civic leaders that a task of the day is to "replace ugliness with beauty, replace challenge with service." He praised the "charity, generosity and vision" of the Woods family for giving the building, which he called "constructive, beautiful, significant."

Mayor Dean Petersen said the building is "one of the finest additions to the City of Lincoln that has happened in many a year."

A Symbol

John Angle, acting for the Community Chest, received from A. DuTeau, foundation president, the lease for the building, and commented that the structure is "a symbol of voluntary participation" of the people of Lincoln.

The new building is occupied by the offices of the Lincoln Foundation, the Chest, the Lincoln Community Council, and seventeen other related health and welfare agencies.

. . . EFFORT BEGUN IN JUNE

Vienna, Austria (AP)—Communist Romania has opened exploratory talks with the United States and North Viet Nam in an attempt to bring about negotiations to end the Vietnamese war, Austrian diplomats said Sunday.

They reported that Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer had described the efforts to Austrian officials during talks in Vienna last week. Maurer is on an official visit to Austria.

Maurer and Manescu gave the impression that their regime is determined to explore every possible avenue toward active contribution to a settlement in Viet Nam.

Briefed

Romanian officials in Vienna said Maurer had been briefed by telephone from Bucharest on meetings between his deputies and the Mansfield group. Informants said the outcome of Mansfield's mission would possibly help Bucharest and Washington decide whether current developments in Viet Nam offered a concrete change for successful peace efforts.

Maurer and Manescu were said to have made it clear to the Austrians that Romania opposes U.S. military action in Viet Nam — not out of solidarity with the communist side, but as an individual country.

Austrian diplomats expressed belief that Romanian leaders apparently feel their neutrality in the ideological feud between Moscow and Peking has won them the confidence of the Red Chinese and their Vietnamese allies.

Maurer and Manescu were said to fear a deterioration in U.S.-Soviet relations as a result of the Viet Nam crisis and that this was likely to affect Romania's plans for economic expansion, which require strong trade ties with the West.

Similar Move

The reported Romanian initiative coincides with a similar move by Hungary. The Hungarian Communist Party central committee announced Saturday after a two-day session that it had taken steps through diplomatic and party channels to restore peace in Southeast Asia

The announcement followed a series of missions to Southeast Asia including a trip by Deputy Premier Jenoe Fock to North Viet Nam, North Korea and Red China last month. Hungarian-U.S. talks were held between Foreign Minister Janos Peter and Rusk during the U.N. General Assembly.

The informants added that he expressed Romania's readiness to serve as mediator between the United States and North Viet Nam "whenever there is a chance of bringing the war to an end."

The Romanians started their peace efforts last June after the North Vietnamese put out peace feelers through Bucharest, the diplomats said. The Romanians contacted Washington officials through the U.S. embassy in Bucharest.

Romania has been acting more independently within the communist bloc and has warmed up to the West particularly in the field of trade.

Senators Stop

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and four traveling Senate colleagues put Romania on their list of stops in their fact-finding mission on Viet Nam. They left Bucharest Sunday for Saigon after talks there with Romanian government officials on the Vietnamese war. They held similar talks in Paris, Warsaw and Moscow.

Before leaving Bucharest, Mansfield told newsmen he could not discuss his conversations with the Romanians before reporting to President Johnson next month. With Mansfield on the mission are Sens. George Aiken, R-Vt. J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del.; Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

The informants in Vienna gave this account of Romania's role in the peace efforts:

The Bucharest government acted on its own initative in contacting U.S. Ambassador William Crawford after getting the peace feelers from Hanoi.

The results of the Bucharest contacts were relayed to Washington and formed a basis for follow-up discussions between Romanian Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu and Secretary of State Dean Rusk during sessions of the U.N. General Assembly in New York last month.

Gibbon (AP)—A three-year-old girl was killed Sunday afternoon when she was run over by a pickup driven by her stepfather in a field on their farm northeast of Gibbon.

Deputy Buffalo County Sheriff Dale Sautter identified the little girl as Della Sue Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Scott.

Sautter said Scott was driving a pickup pulling a trailer loaded with wire and the little girl was riding on the trailer with two other children. A budle of wire fell off the trailer and Scott backed up to the wire roll.

Lincolnites Challenged At Dedication Of Center

Lincolnites were challenged to "keep pace" with social service needs Sunday as the new Lincoln Center for Community Services at 15th and N was dedicated formally.

Speaking at the ceremony, Frank H. Woods of Chicago said it was the "promise of better social services" that moved the Woods Charitable Fund to donate the $1.3 million to erect the structure. Woods is secretary-treasurer of the fund.

"Our current aspirations exceed our ability to deliver," Woods said, saying the physical plants of social agencies are "in second class condition," that "no agency has enough money" to meet real needs, and that agencies must not try to "meet today's problems with yesterday's programs."

Dollar A Year

The Woods Fund donated the cost of the building to the Lincoln Foundation, which holds title and leases the building to the Lincoln Community Chest for a dollar a year. The Chest handles the leasing of space in the building to community agencies at a cost that will maintain the building and provide a fund for repairs.

Woods also urged support for the Lincoln Foundation as a way to "dedicate capital" to "changing needs" in the social service field, saying a good foundation would have the ability to change with the needs.

Gov. Frank Morrison told the business and civic leaders that a task of the day is to "replace ugliness with beauty, replace challenge with service." He praised the "charity, generosity and vision" of the Woods family for giving the building, which he called "constructive, beautiful, significant."

Mayor Dean Petersen said the building is "one of the finest additions to the City of Lincoln that has happened in many a year."

A Symbol

John Angle, acting for the Community Chest, received from A. DuTeau, foundation president, the lease for the building, and commented that the structure is "a symbol of voluntary participation" of the people of Lincoln.

The new building is occupied by the offices of the Lincoln Foundation, the Chest, the Lincoln Community Council, and seventeen other related health and welfare agencies.

Beef Cattle Diseases Topic Of Dual Meets

Alliance — Note to Nebraska beef cattle producers: If you want to know more about beef cattle diseases, their prevention and cure, circle the dates of Dec. 8-9.

Those are the dates of two beef cattle seminars, a repeat of a successful series of four educational meetings held last year under the sponsorship of the American Cyanamid Co. and the University of Nebraska.

This year similar seminars are planned for Alliance Dec. 8, at the city auditorium and at North Platte on Dec. 9, at the Experiment Station auditorium. Both programs start at 9:30 a.m. (CST at North Platte; MST at Alliance); and are slated to conclude about 3:30 p.m.

Joining American Cyanamid and NU in sponsoring this year's presentations are the Nebraska Stock Growers Association and the Nebraska Sandhills Cattlemens Association.

Duplicate Programs

The seminars, with duplicate programs planned for each, are designed to bring the latest developments in disease prevention and control to the cattleman, according to Dr. E. Crosby Howe, NU extension veterinarian.

Topics and speakers are:

The Use of Artificial Insemination in Ranch Operations— Dr. Harold White, general manager for Beef Cattle Research, Armour & Co. Dr. White's paper will tie in with papers on AI and beef cattle improvement that will be presented at University of Nebraska-sponsored Range Cattleman's Roundups at McCook Dec. 2 and Valentine Dec. 3.

Hard to Manage

The Present Concept of Calf Scours — Dr. M. J. Twiehaus, chairman of the NU veterinary science department. Dr. Twiehaus has had wide experience with this hard-to-manage disease as a private veterinary practitioner, and as head of the Department of Animal Pathology at Kansas State University, prior to coming to Nebraska. This topic also will be discussed by Dr. Twiehaus at the Range Roundups.

Industrial Research and the Cattleman — Paul Zimmer, research and field development manager for American Cyanamid, Kansas City, Mo. Zimmer has had wide experience in the development and testing of new drugs and chemicals in the field.

The Mucosal Disease Complex, including Rednose (IBR) and Bovine Virus Diarrhea (BVD) — Dr. Frank Ramsey, head of the Department of Animal Pathology at Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa. Dr. Ramsey also has had extensive experience with these diseases in both the research laboratory and the field.

Not Widespread

Anaplasmosis — Dr. Ted Franklin, chief researcher in the area of Anaplasmosis at Texas A. & M. University. This disease, although not widespread in Nebraska, deserves the attention of ranchers because of their need to know how to avoid or cope with this costly problem when it occurs, Dr. Howe pointed out. Beef cattle feeders also would be interested in problems associated with Anaplasmosis and Mucosal disease complex and are welcome to attend.

University of Nebraska veterinary science research in beef cattle diseases — a roundup by Dr. Howe. His paper will deal with the progress on research dealing with vibriosis disease diagnosis, shipping fever and other diseases.

Dr. T. A. Willroth of American Cyanamid Co. will preside at both meetings and moderate a panel discussion.

"All in all, the seminars promise to be one of the most informative sessions on beef cattle health problems to be scheduled in Nebraska," Dr. Howe concluded.

The Farm Round Up

By Glenn Kreuscher, Farm Editor

This is the 11th annual observance of Farm-City Week, which by presidential proclamation is aimed at "bringing about better understanding between the urban and rural segments of society."

Some 11,000 cities, villages, and rural areas of the United States are expected to participate in the observance, which recognizes the important contributions that the farmer makes to the welfare of urban people and the city worker to the welfare of people living on the farms.

The theme selected nationally is "Agri-business is Everybody's Business."

The entire nation can benefit from the efficiency of American agriculture with the most direct result being that the American consumer now spends a record low of about 18.5 cents out of every dollar of disposable income for food compared with 27 cents during the late 1940s.

More Jobs

Everette Spangler, vice president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha, told the 812 member Lincoln Production Credit Association this past week that it is well for the nation to remember that agriculture makes jobs for three times as many people as any other industry.

Another reason the man in town has a real interest in agriculture is because the $45 billion generated by agriculture in new income each year makes most of its first stops in towns of below 5,000 population and then furnishes business for six more stops before it moves on to metropolitan centers.

When the talk turns to wondering why we have to worry about farmers in the future, it is very disgusting to those who know what confronts us in supplying food in the years ahead.

This is how it looks.

We live now in a world of 3.4 billion human beings, half of whom do not have enough to eat. Population will increase as much in the next 35 years as it has since the beginning of time.

Land Limited

Less than four billion acres of the earth's surface is arable, and the amount of additional land that can be brought under cultivation is limited.

More and more planners are wondering if the transition from an agriculture plagued with surpluses will be able to react to meet world food production needs that must be doubled and redoubled if predictions on population increases materialize.

* * *

One of the questions that will be asked at the Nebraska Farm Safety Council meeting at the Nebraska Center Monday afternoon is, "What is causing the increase in farm accidents?"

The record of accidents on the farm has not been good this year. While a lot of attention has been focused on youth being careful, it is the older farmer who is getting into the fatality columns at an alarming rate.

Last week I interviewed a farmer who has been a leader in safety promotion but who had lost three fingers in a combine accident just a few days earlier.

After we reviewed conditions just prior to his accident the final deduction was, "I recall that I was in a tremendous hurry to get the job finished and to keep an appointment at a meeting."

Maybe modern-day equipment has speeded up more than overworked farmers realize which means every piece of equipment should have a sign printed on it saying, "THINK."

Gagged, Knifed Baroness' Death Is Ruled Suicide

Paris (AP) — Police have decided Baroness Slyvaine de Courtry, 34, committed suicide although she was found in her apartment two months ago bound hand and foot, gagged, and pinned to the floor with a Japanese dagger in her back.

To dispel any doubts, the police have made a film showing how the spinster could have done it. Miss de Courtry's stand-in is shown taking the knife in her two bound hands and then plunging it deep into her back. The weapon used in the police movie has a retractable blade.

The suicide ruling followed intensive investigation and close questioning of the dead woman's friends and neighbors.

County Team Shoots For National Honors

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

A Lancaster County 4-H poultry judging team will be competing for national honors in competition with 4-H teams from 16 states in Chicago Saturday.

The Lancaster County team is composed of four Lincoln youths, Gary Garrison, Gerald Frain, Alex Lekai III and Nancy Lekai, who won the right to compete nationally following their win of the state poultry judging contest.

The young poultrymen will be asked to select pullets that are mature and free from defects for the laying house. They will judge layers on egg production and evaluate live and dressed fryers and fowl to be graded for meat quality and turkey hens.

Another test of their judging ability will be how well they do in scoring broken-out and shell eggs.

The Nebraska trip is being made possible by the following Nebraska firms: Milton G. Waldbaum Co., Wakefield; Henningsen Foods, Inc., Omaha; Hill Hatchery, Lincoln; Shelley Equipment Co., Lincoln; and Lincoln Poultry and Egg Co., Lincoln.

The team coach is Marven L. Vaughn of 3726 No. 61st.

The Nebraska team will compete with teams from Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia.

In the state contest Gerald was the silver medal winner; Nancy won the bronze medal; and Gary and Alex placed fourth and seventh.

FARM REAL ESTATE VALUES CONTINUE CLIMB

Farm real estate values continued to rise during 1964 and reached new highs both in the United States and in Nebraska, according to P. A. Henderson, University of Nebraska extension agricultural economist.

Nebraska's land values reached their low point in 1941. Since then they have been rising at varying rates, he said. During the 1940s, they nearly doubled; during the 1950s they went up another 50% and during the first four years of the 1960s, almost another 25%. Expressed in terms of 1950 values, the rise since 1940 has averaged six per cent a year, Henderson said.

In Nebraska, there is little question that rangeland prices have increased tremendously since the low of the late 1930s and early 1940s, he said. In some areas, ranch land values have increased as much as 2,000% since the depression lows and much of it has increased as much as 600 to 700%.

Some of the land which is now irrigated has realized a substantial increase in value — perhaps as much as 800 to 900% since the low time in land values. However, if allowances are made for investments in wells, irrigation equipment, and leveling, these increases appear more moderate — more nearly in the neighborhood of 500 to 600%, Henderson said.

Some of the poorer dry cropland in the state has shown about as little increase as any of Nebraska's land, he said.

According to the Economic Research Service of the USDA, the average value of real estate per farm has increased 85% in Nebraska since 1954 compared to a national average of 141%, he said.

800 Honor Hildreth Man With Program

Hildreth (AP) — Some 800 persons turned out in Hildreth Sunday afternoon to honor a veteran municipal employe, 60-year-old Herman Rickels.

Rickels, a native of providence of Oldenburg, Germany, came to America in 1924. Since 1929, he has served the city of Hildreth as marshal, fire chief, and light, water and street commissioner. He also served as a member of the school board and on the council of St. Paul Lutheran Church.

In a "this is your life" type of program, Rickels was surprised by the appearance of his sister Marie Siems, 56, of Westerstaade, Germany, whom he had last seen in 1950 on a visit to Germany. She had been flown to Hildreth for a visit paid for by donations from the community.

Julius Mietzner of Hildreth Lion Club which had sponsored the special appreciation by program, said original plans had been to bring Rickels' 82-year-old mother for the visit but physicians had advised against her making the trip.

Rickels is still serving the community in most of the posts, but stepped down recently as chief of the fire department. He is still a member of the department however.

He has a son, Julius, living in Hastings.

Nebraskans Can Cut Own Yule Trees Again

Halsey — You can cut your own Christmas tree again this year in the Nebraska National Forest two miles west of here, according to Karl A. Loerch, University of Nebraska Extension Forester.

Trees will be available in spite of the disastrous fire that swept through the forest last May.

The area set aside for Christmas tree harvest was untouched by the fire, and the trees are still much too close for good management, Loerch said. Removal of the marked trees will benefit the stand by allowing more room for the remaining trees to grow and develop properly.

The U.S. Forest Service will permit Christmas trees to be cut from designated areas of the forest between Dec. 4 and 20, he said. It is charging $1 per tree, with no limit on the number taken by a group or individual.

Most of the trees are Ponderosa pine.

When you arrive at the forest, contact the district ranger at the headquarters office to get a permit and instructions for reaching the Christmas tree area, Loerch advises.

Highway Groups Agree Interstate Priority To Stand

Omaha (AP)—Nebraska and Iowa highway commissions agreed at a joint meeting that the original priority system for completion of Interstate Highway work in Omaha and Council Bluffs will remain in effect.

This schedule calls for emphasis on Interstate 480, the downtown Omaha route which includes a major Missouri River crossing to connect with Interstate 29 in Council Bluffs.

An eight-lane bridge is scheduled to be open to traffic by the late summer of 1966, and Nebraska State Engineer John Hossack said the downtown Omaha gap will be closed in late 1969 or early 1970.

Next in priority is Interstate 80, which will cross the Missouri on a bridge to be built at Spring Street in South Omaha, but the two states were not in agreement on the timetable.

In last position is Interstate 680, the circumferential route which will cross the Missouri River on the present North Omaha Mormon Bridge span and a companion span now scheduled for completion by 1972.

The Iowa Commission is a decision-making agency while the Nebraska Commission acts only in an advisory capacity to the State Department of Roads and the governor.

L. M. Clauson, Iowa highway commission chief engineer, said his plans call for completion of the Spring Street span in 1969, but Hossack estimated it would be 1970 to 1971. He said although Iowa has the responsibility for building the bridge Nebraska may not be able to come up with its share of the allocated funds in time to meet Clauson's schedule.

Radio Waves New Weapon Against Bugs?

Radio frequency or high-frequency electrical fields may spell destruction for insects infesting stored grains, according to a University of Nebraska entomologist.

At a recent meeting of the North Central Marketing Channels, A. M. Kadoum reported on experimental work on stored grain, done at NU. He said that use of insecticides on stored grain often leaves residues. The radio frequency (RF) treatment does not leave such a residue.

Complete mortality was obtained with all species of insects subjected to RF treatment, Kadoum said. The treatments did not reduce germination of wheat when its moisture content was below 14%.

RF treatment affects the reproductive ability of insects. Kadoum reported that studies with lesser grain borers showed that the number of offspring was reduced and the emergence of adults delayed because of the RF treatments.

One disadvantage of the use of RF is its cost. NU officials have hopes, however, that further studies may result in development of the method so that it can be recommended for general use.

Complete mortality was obtained with all species of insects subjected to RF treatment, Kadoum said. The treatments did not reduce germination of wheat when its moisture content was below 14%.

RF treatment affects the reproductive ability of insects. Kadoum reported that studies with lesser grain borers showed that the number of offspring was reduced and the emergence of adults delayed because of the RF treatments.

One disadvantage of the use of RF is its cost. NU officials have hopes, however, that further studies may result in development of the method so that it can be recommended for general use.

Peru's Longfellow Performs Duties Of Carpenter, Columnist, Historian

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Peru — Old Henry Wadsworth was known only as a poet, cousin Ernie (couple of times removed) is columnist, carpenter and the closest they have here to campus historian.

Longfellow is Chamber of Commerce "president." too, in a town that has no Chamber of Commerce. Postmaster Babe Craig saw to that.

I'd been answering all the mail addressed to the Chamber so one day the postmaster said he'd promote me from secretary to president" chuckled the study in versatility 63 'Doubled my salary along with it "

If the title and salary are mythical not so the promotion Longfellow manages continually for his town and his college Father John Henry was one of Peru's first products back in '65 and Ernest has been running its historical hills since boyhood

Tales of vanished Mt. Vernon, Peru's predecessor, and long-gone coal mines are frequent in Longfellow's weekly "Sportsmen's News." He started the column in 1958 as secretary of the Peru Sportsmen's Club—a post he still holds—and it appears regularly in the Nemaha County Herald and companion Auburn Press-Tribune.

I'd like to learn to be a writer but guess I started kind of late," lamented the soft-spoken maintenance man. "Research fascinates me though and right now I'm doing a lot of it for a 1967 centennial pamphlet for the college "

Left Arm

Longfellow is in fact the historical left arm for Peru State publicists Don Carlile and Bob Henry He has known its hallowed halls as a student repaired them as a staff member — and helped fill them as a father

Two of Longfellow's three sons are PSC graduates, Stanley joining the faculty this year to teach biology David teaches high school at Windom, Kan, and Jack is a Western Electric engineer in New Jersey

Campus carpenter and mason by day the Peruvian couldn't be much closer at night either He stays at Delzell Hall a men's dormitory where his wife is housemother

Oxford Area Profits Increase

. . . AS TURKEYS GRACE TABLES

Oxford (AP)—Turkey from the Oxford area will grace many a Nebraska table during the coming holiday season

Milton Thulin, who began raising turkeys back in 1942, said they have developed into a million-dollar-a-year business around Oxford.

Thulin and his two sons raise a total of about 70 000 turkeys annually Sixteen other turkey farms also are located in the area, but they fail to raise among them a half million needed for a processing plant

Thulin operates a hatchery which can turn out 25 000 pouts each week after the hatch begins in February It runs through June

Most of the "bronze" birds raised in the Oxford area are shipped to plants as far as Sioux City, Iowa, Falls City, Nebraska City and Gibbon.

As Thulin said "we believe we have the choicest turkeys in the country here and 23 families are depending on a market that agrees "

Thulin said the turkey industry is trying hard to overcome the traditional holiday market" and make turkey a year around meat

At The Banquet Table

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The goodies have been flowing into the office from all sources From Congressional Quarterly comes a report, for instance, that this year s Thanksgiving meal for four will cost nearly $7, including the turkey and all the trimmings Turkeys by the way, will be more expensive this year than last, particularly for smaller birds Best buy is a large bird, preferably a tom that tops the 26-pound mark

More People, More Food

Of course, a family of four with a 26-pound bird would be eating turkey until it came out their ears but we are only passing on the price advice for whatever it is worth to anyone The same report tells us why you can't win in the game of life Actually, there are more turkeys to be marketed this year than last—104 million birds this year as compared to 99.7 million in 1964 But the population has gone up to take up the slack. Also, more birds are being processed into new boneless "roasts" and other ready-to-eat forms that cut into supplies

These processed foods are not on the cheap end of the grocery bill themselves. Rather, they are in the luxury class and thereby cost more. At the same time, buying them creates a shortage in the standard bill of fare which makes the prices there go on the upswing. Thus, we lose on both ends of things.

On the other hand, things are not so black as they might look. The Associated Press reports that the national food bill will hit $86 billion in 1965, a 6 percent rise from 1964. But even with that increase, the total works out to $439 for each man, woman and child in the country. Thus, it costs about 95 cents per day to feed one average person. That, for instance, is less than an hour's work at the minimum wage for three meals a day—not a bad bargain.

Then again, there is the United Press International and its report about food. That report starts out innocently enough with a routine quote from Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover who has sounded a warning against uncontrolled exploitation of science. He said that technology, which is the application of scientific knowledge, "may become a Frankenstein monster, destroying its creator." What he meant, UPI didn't say, but the writer did speculate and that is where food again comes into the picture. Isn't it amazing how often food can come into the picture? It comes into it so often, in fact, that most of us are about 10 precent or more overweight. Isn't it nice, though, to find that left-over chicken leg in the refrigerator at about 10 o'clock in the evening? And don't the pretzels go good with a cold drink on a hot summer night and a plate of cookies with a hot drink on a cold winter night?

If you do worry about an overweight problem, you should be greatly concerned with the speculation of the UPI writer. He figures that Admiral Rickover might have been thinking about a new farm machine. It is a tape recorder. The idea is to let a bunch of hogs get extremely hungry. Then, you lead them to the feed trough which is equipped with a machine to tape their grunts. Then, you play back the tape for hogs that are only ordinarily hungry and the sounds of the ravenous grunts stimulate these ordinarily hungry hogs into eating more than they would otherwise.

Well, so what, you say, I am not a hog. True enough, for most of us, but that isn't the end of the story. The UPI writer predicts that soon people will be going into expensive restaurants and, without knowing it, be subjected to the taped sounds of people enjoying a delectable meal. Already, the senses of sight and smell have been greatly experimented with so nothing would surprise us.

There you have it—science is hurrying toward a terrible end. Come to think of it, a lot of people do believe that each generation is bigger than the last one. Take a look at the athletes of today. A basketball team with six-footers would be nothing these days but the six-foot player was pretty good a few years ago.

The Tall And The Broad

There was a day when the six-foot-six-inch player was a real find and if you had one of them on a team, that team was destined for great things. Today, most every team has at least one such and sometimes two or three such members. The 190-pound high school football player was once an exception but he isn't at all unusual, anymore. In fact, he isn't a top college prospect unless he is approaching the 200-pound mark by the time he is a high school senior. Maybe somebody has already been playing some of those tapes discussed by the UPI writer.

On the other hand, science might outsmart itself and come up with a complete diet in pill form and thereby make irrelevant any and all appeal to the senses. Then we could switch to lunch minutes rather than lunch hours, end the day earlier and all have more leisure time. It certainly is a rosy future if you just stop to figure it out.

A Close Squeak

The United States position for keeping Red China out of the United Nations thus far is moving steadily toward defeat. Unless something happens dramatically changing world opinion, we will face the sorry day of rejection on principal.

The recent vote in the UN General Assembly, which we have labelled a victory for our persuasion, lacks a good deal of qualifying as such. Forty-seven nations voted to give Red China membership, and forty-seven voted against it. We had 10 fewer votes on our side than we had in 1963. There were six new votes for Red China and eight additional absentions. In all there was a voting shift of 21 nations in two years. We cannot lose supporters at that rate very much longer and still hold our course.

It is true that prior to the voting the U.S. won by 56 to 49 on its contention that admission of Red China was "an important question" which required a two thirds vote for membership instead of a plain majority. Even with a final tie vote this left Red China considerably short of the required votes for membership. But in contrast the tie vote was on whether Red China should be elected and Nationalist China should be relieved of its UN membership. Had the vote been for a decision that would have provided membership for the two Chinas, we might have lost.

We do not believe this vote illustrates increasing popularity for Red China, but is based more on the substantial fact that China has become such a power that any covenants for peace must include it. One can safely reject a power that is too small and too weak to make serious trouble. But it is another story in the case of a nation approaching one billion in population, possessed of some nuclear knowhow and committed to bitterness, war and expansion.

Only A Limited View

America is glad to be favored with a visit from Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon. They are fine representatives of the British ruling family and would be good guests in any event.

It is too bad they did not come here long ago and repeatedly. But now that the first visit is here we can hope for many more.

They have comported themselves well and have fulfilled their role of visiting royalty, well adjusted to American democracy.

But there are many Americans who question the sort of entertainment they have been subjected to. Hollywood scenes and Hollywood personages may be curiously interesting, just as Washington, D.C., is peculiarly political. But a steady dose of such entertainment tends to obscure the real work-a-day America. The great British couple seem to be victims of host planning that has largely prevented them from seeing the real America.

We are proud of our country, its great size and beauty. We have a fine school system, and fabulous industrial establishments. None of these can be detected in a Hollywood whingding which is no doubt more notable for its expense and garishness than any real culture. And the real America does not show clearly in the protocol of Washington or in a few New York hotels.

Virtually no time has been allowed for a view of the scenic wonders of America. And the royal pair was whisked at a very high altitude over the world's greatest and most efficient food producing regions.

And most regrettable of all they were allowed virtually no contact with average America going about the very vital task of making the wheels of a great friendly society turn. Too bad, too bad.

Can't Sleep Forever

With the fighting in Viet Nam at such heights as it has been the past few weeks, world attention has not focused so much on other areas. Little has been heard, for instance, from India where an outbreak of hostilities with Pakistan over Kashmir recently had us greatly concerned

Now, there are reports from the subcontinent that American policy has been non-existent since the India-Pakistan cease-fire The United States is caught in the cross-fire between the two nations and apparently is attempting to use foreign aid as a club over the heads of both nations.

It is reported that in diplomatic circles there is total uncertainty as to what current U.S policy is toward India. At the same time, many knowledgeable people believe that Russia is making headway in both Pakistan and India as a result of U.S. indecision.

Indian sources are making it clear that their nation does not intend to dance to any particular tune in order to receive further U.S assistance. It is hoped that these reports are an exaggeration of the true situation, that the U.S. is not letting its position in the subcontinent deteriorate because it cannot make up its mind.

The U.S. seems to think that it can still court and win the friendship of both Pakistan and India. The trouble is that it has not figured out how There is a serious question as to how long we can continue in the pursuit of this dream before we lose the whole loaf The friendship of both is desirable but the friendship of even one is more desirable than the loss of both.

Peace Feeler Issue Full Of Confusion

WASHINGTON — The last words of Adlai Stevenson as quoted by Eric Sevareid in Look Magazine have stirred a tempest of discussion as to whether President Johnson was c[illegible] toward peace in Southeast Asia; whether he rebuffed peace overtures from U.N. Secretary General U Thant during the fall of 1964.

The facts in the case were rather fully reported in this column March 15, April 10 and Aug. 3, and are somewhat different from the version given to Sevareid by Adlai

However, what neither he nor the State Department nor anyone else knew last year, and what has only leaked out last week, thanks to the Red Chinese, was that one day before Premier Kosygin arrived in Hanoi on the fatal Feb. 7 when the United States started bombing North Viet Nam, Kosygin had stopped in Peking to ask the Chinese to use their influence with the North Vietnamese for peace.

Or as the Chinese put it in their latest diatribe against the Russians, Kosygin had "stressed the need to help the United States find a way out of Viet Nam."

This was on Feb. 5-6. Next day, as Kosygin was spending the night in Hanoi, the United States answered with a fusillade of bombs, initiating a policy which has played into the Chinese hands.

This is why the Chinese have been continually accusing the Russians of "faithfully obeying orders of the U.S. imperialists . . . officially transmitting to the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam these preposterous demands aimed at forcing the Vietnamese people into unconditional surrender '

This also makes understandable the bitterness of Russian reaction to our bombing policy.

Historians will doubtless speculate today on the anniversary of Kennedy's death and for years to come on how JFK would have played his cards for peace in the crucial year 1964 when, if alive, he would have been running for re-election. Instead Johnson was running. And about the time of the Atlantic City convention, Johnson sent a peace feeler to Ho Chi Minh. The response was vague.

"But simultaneously," as reported by this column last spring, "U.N. Secretary General Thant sent a message by way of Moscow to the North Vietnamese. He proposed truce talks on neutral ground, such as his native Burma or Cambodia."

This was what Adlai Stevenson was doubtless referring to in his talks with Sevareid.

DORIS FLEESON

New McCarthyism Showing Its Face

WASHINGTON—The more sensitive thermometers that register the emotional climate are showing overheating. Those who study the readings believe this can mean trouble for the future in the form of a new McCarthyism.

The cause of the overheating is the rapidly escalating war in Viet Nam and the reaction against the demonstrations by groups opposing the war. What with an anti-war demonstration here one day next week and a pro-Viet Nam demonstration the following day, there is every indication the temperature is likely to continue to go up.

The Johnson administration bases its opposition to the anti-war demonstrators on the ground that both Red China and North Viet Nam will take the protests as evidence the United States will pull out of Viet Nam if only the war goes on long enough. Certainly the communist regimes in both Peking and Hanoi make all possible use of dissenting voices in the West, however minor.

But seasoned diplomats both here and in Europe doubt that either Peking or Hanoi have illusions about the significance of the small minority that continues to protest against the war. They can read the meaning of the rapid buildup of American forces and the fantastic increase in the fire power the Air Force is bringing to bear and this signals intentions more realistically than a few student marchers. The protests as relayed by radio and film to the communist masses may be useful in stirring them to greater sacrifice. Even here, however, it is considered likely that in North Viet Nam, at least, the peasant is undeceived as he faces a more and more rugged existence with American bombers wiping out road and rail lines.

There is another side to the Johnson administration's concern over all forms of protest whether debates and teach-ins or demonstrations in the streets. This is the President's passionate desire for a consensus taking in every man and woman. This consensus psychology was reflected in Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers' statement reporting Johnson's "surprise that any one citizen would feel toward his country in a way that is not consistent with the national interest."

Little more than a year ago President Johnson in the thick of the presidential campaign said in a speech in Manchester, N.H., that he did not think we were ready for American boys to do the fighting for Asian boys. He went on "So we are not going north and we are not going south; we are going to continue to try to get them to save their own freedom with their own men, with our leadership and our officer direction, and such equipment as we can furnish them. We think that losing 190 lives in the period we have been out there is bad but it is not like 190,000 that we might lose the first month if we escalated that war. . ."

Those words must have been heard in Peking and Hanoi. But in that closed, authoritarian world, where any dissent is punished by prison or death, words are weighed against deeds and American action speaks forcefully in Viet Nam today.

ROLAND AMUNDSEN

Profiles In Science

Roland Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, was born in 1872 at Borge, Norway, the descendent of a long line of sailors. Despite his family's history of seafarers, Amundsen, much against his wish, was forced to study medicine.

Falling unwillingly in with his parents' plans for his career, Amundsen studied to become a doctor. When he had received his degree, he did what he had secretly resolved to do: become an explorer. He took a job as deck hand on a sealing ship in order to get experience of sailing, especially in the cold north.

When he had learned first-hand some of the graver problems of arctic sailing, he studied with a German scientist who was an expert in magnetism, an indication that he already had in mind an expedition to polar regions.

Later, Amundsen went on his first Antarctic voyage and was subjected to a typical Arctic or Antarctic disaster. The ship on which he was first mate was caught in the ice and held prisoner there for more than a year. Amundsen and the rest of the crew lived for months in the Antarctic "night" but almost starved to death

In 1903, after further voyages in the far north, Amundsen set out on his first real trip of exploration and discovery. Ever since the discovery that North America was a huge continent and not a mere group of islands lying in the path between Europe and Asia, explorers had sought the romantic Northwest Passage. It was thought of as a navigable river, strait or sea that connected the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans on the north. By Amundsen's time it was realized an ocean lay between, but the seaway had not yet been found.

Amundsen was the discoverer of the Northwest Passage, and in 1906, after harrowing adventures and narrow escapes from death, he sailed into the Bering Sea and made port at Nome, Alaska.

On this great voyage he also discovered that the magnetic North Pole shifted somewhat and was not a fixed point. Nor did it coincide with the Geographic North Pole, still undiscovered.

Amundsen tried to be first at the North Pole but while his ship was being fitted out, this was accomplished by Robert E. Peary. The Norwegian explorer then raced for the South Pole. His chief rival for the honor of discovering the South Pole was the famous Capt. Robert Scott, who died in the attempt.

Amundsen's drive for the South Pole was better organized than his expedition in the north, and he encountered good weather. In December, 1911, his Antarctic expedition camped directly on the site of the geographic pole. He named the central continental plateau in honor of the King of Norway, Haakon VII.

In later years Amundsen continued his explorations by air and died when his airplane came down somewhere in the Arctic in 1928.

NASON ON EDUCATION

Success Without Being A Genius

By DR. LESLIE J. NASON

Successful men and women often receive much attention and win awards because of their achievements. Sometimes, especially in the field of science, they are referred to as geniuses.

Young people are prone to compare themselves with such persons. Unfortunately, too many of them come to feel that only people much smarter than themselves can succeed. This attitude not only can affect their own lives, but can deprive the country of their talents.

Actually, there are so many different aspects to most professions that success comes to thousands in each field. One doesn't have to be a genius to succeed.

Even what we measure as intelligence and label as "I.Q." is not a fixed thing. It is not a case of all or nothing. The test measures developed skills and abilities; consequently, the important thing is whether or not a person develops his innate abilities and skills.

Continued learning is a requirement to success. A state employment agency head reports that, for those not going on to college, the first year after high school graduation is often a key year.

Those who merely put in their day's work with no attempt at self-development are disillusioned by the end of that first year out of school. The job has become routine and uninteresting. Advancement seems difficult or impossible to obtain. They are out of school, out of the habit of learning, and thus in a blind alley.

On the other hand, those who avail themselves of shop training programs, evening school, home study, or in some way continue learning usually make sufficient advancement in their jobs to remain optimistic and happy.

The formula for a feeling of well-being and optimism for a successful future is "Keep Learning." If unemployed, prepare for employment. For example, there are many openings for persons with real proficiency in typing and shorthand; for persons who can read and understand: and for persons who can write and spell. All of these skills respond to practice.

The young person with time on his hands needs only to apply himself diligently to assure success at some future date.

Opportunities for guidance are readily available. The state employment office is ready and willing to dispense information on training opportunities for occupations in which there is a demand for more workers.

Both public and private business schools offer guidance and counseling as well as opportunities for formal study.

But, with all of these openings available the key is still in the hands of the individual, He must be willing to put forth the effort to gain the benefits of continued learning.

Death All Around

Wilber, Neb.

Last July a very dear friend and relative returned from 16 months active duty in Viet Nam. As we talked, I took notes on some of the things he said. These are fragments and pieces which I remember. We all should read them . . .

"Crying filling the air. The smoke clearing and the water red with blood, many types of blood. Buddies half-submerged in grime. The blood of yellow people sharing that grime. Corpses everywhere, even in trees. Kids dead. I couldn't even cry after awhile. Fright and death all around. Despair, hopelessness, homesickness. A dead field radio. Blood and stink everywhere. Mold in my boots every morning. Funny, the way blood mixes in water and the way it makes pools on dust.

"Are we winning? Sure we are. Don't you know that death is popular. People die to get it every day. Yeah, we are winning . . . I guess . . ."

This young man is not a poet or writer, just an American GI who did what his country asked him to.

Art Show

Lincoln, Neb.

I disagree with those who would boycott the governor's Nebraskana Art Show slated for next June. Shows with special emphasis are not uncommon. The state is not dictating to its artists what is suitable to be painted, but is describing the nature and purpose of a particular art show, that is, restricting the type of work in a show with a special theme. It is misrepresentation to say that some unqualified group is laying down expert opinions on the intangibles which make quality in art.

It seems presumptuous to suggest, as some have, that the "best artists" will have nothing to do with such a show. Such an implication is as restrictive and prejudicial in intent as almost any art show could be. Oh, well, some will just have to settle for No. 2 ranking if they still want to exhibit, and I hope they do.

I do hope the show is not called off, and I hope the Nebraskana theme is retained. It would be nice to see in the show some paintings by even the best artists

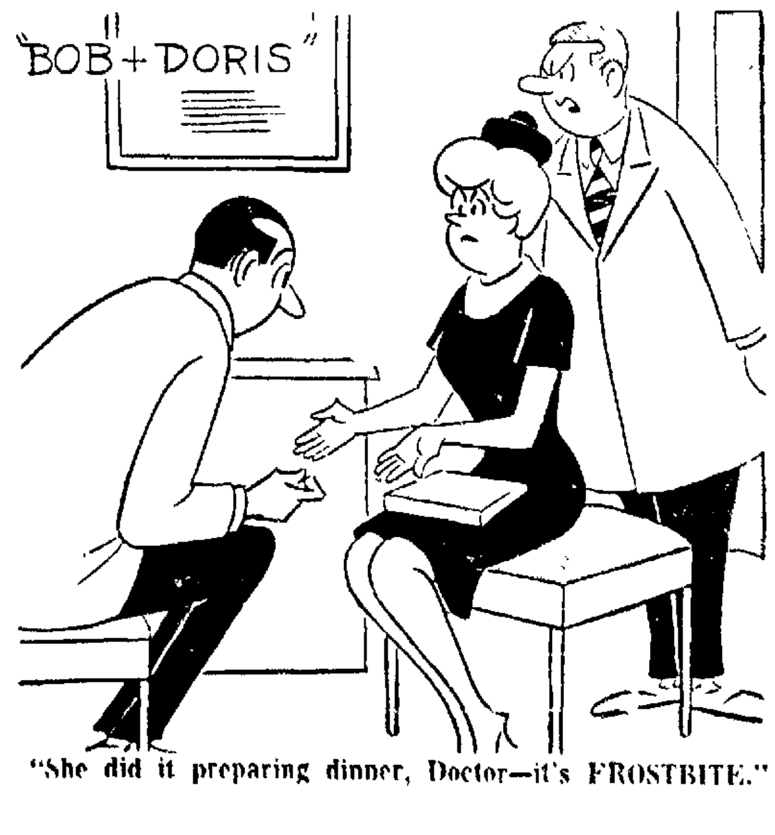
OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed



"She did it preparing dinner, Doctor—it's FROSTBITE."

At The Banquet Table

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The goodies have been flowing into the office from all sources. From Congressional Quarterly comes a report, for instance, that this year's Thanksgiving meal for four will cost nearly $7, including the turkey and all the trimmings. Turkeys, by the way, will be more expensive this year than last, particularly for smaller birds. Best buy is a large bird, preferably a tom that tops the 26-pound mark.

Of course, a family of four with a 26-pound bird would be eating turkey until it came out their ears but we are only passing on the price advice for whatever it is worth to anyone. The same report tells us why you can't win in the game of life. Actually, there are more turkeys to be marketed this year than last—104 million birds this year as compared to 99.7 million in 1964. But the population has gone up to take up the slack. Also, more birds are being processed into new boneless "roasts" and other ready-to-eat forms that cut into supplies.

More People, More Food

These processed foods are not on the cheap end of the grocery bill themselves. Rather, they are in the luxury class and thereby cost more. At the same time, buying them creates a shortage in the standard bill of fare which makes the prices there go on the upswing. Thus, we lose on both ends of things.

On the other hand, things are not so black as they might look. The Associated Press reports that the national food bill will hit $86 billion in 1965, a 6 percent rise from 1964. But even with that increase, the total works out to $439 for each man, woman and child in the country. Thus, it costs about 95 cents per day to feed one average person. That, for instance, is less than an hour's work at the minimum wage for three meals a day—not a bad bargain.

Then again, there is the United Press International and its report about food. That report starts out innocently enough with a routine quote from Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover who has sounded a warning against uncontrolled exploitation of science. He said that technology, which is the application of scientific knowledge, "may become a Frankenstein monster, destroying its creator." What he meant, UPI didn't say, but the writer did speculate and that is where food again comes into the picture. Isn't it amazing how often food can come into the picture? It comes into it so often, in fact, that most of us are about 10 precent or more overweight. Isn't it nice, though, to find that left-over chicken leg in the refrigerator at about 10 o'clock in the evening? And don't the pretzels go good with a cold drink on a hot summer night and a plate of cookies with a hot drink on a cold winter night?

If you do worry about an overweight problem, you should be greatly concerned with the speculation of the UPI writer. He figures that Admiral Rickover might have been thinking about a new farm machine. It is a tape recorder. The idea is to let a bunch of hogs get extremely hungry. Then, you lead them to the feed trough which is equipped with a machine to tape their grunts. Then, you play back the tape for hogs that are only ordinarily hungry and the sounds of the ravenous grunts stimulate these ordinarily hungry hogs into eating more than they would otherwise.

Well, so what, you say, I am not a hog. True enough, for most of us, but that isn't the end of the story. The UPI writer predicts that soon people will be going into expensive restaurants and, without knowing it, be subjected to the taped sounds of people enjoying a delectable meal. Already, the senses of sight and smell have been greatly experimented with so nothing would surprise us.

There you have it—science is hurrying toward a terrible end. Come to think of it, a lot of people do believe that each generation is bigger than the last one. Take a look at the athletes of today. A basketball team with six-footers would be nothing these days but the six-foot player was pretty good a few years ago.

There was a day when the six-foot-six-inch player was a real find and if you had one of them on a team, that team was destined for great things. Today, most every team has at least one such and sometimes two or three such members. The 190-pound high school football player was once an exception but he isn't at all unusual, anymore. In fact, he isn't a top college prospect unless he is approaching the 200-pound mark by the time he is a high school senior. Maybe somebody has already been playing some of those tapes discussed by the UPI writer.

The Tall And The Broad

On the other hand, science might outsmart itself and come up with a complete diet in pill form and thereby make irrelevant any and all appeal to the senses. Then we could switch to lunch minutes rather than lunch hours, end the day earlier and all have more leisure time. It certainly is a rosy future if you just stop to figure it out.

DORIS FLEESON

New McCarthyism Showing Its Face

WASHINGTON—The more sensitive thermometers that register the emotional climate are showing overheating. Those who study the readings believe this can mean trouble for the future in the form of a new McCarthyism.

The cause of the overheating is the rapidly escalating war in Viet Nam and the reaction against the demonstrations by groups opposing the war. What with an anti-war demonstration here one day next week and a pro-Viet Nam demonstration the following day, there is every indication the temperature is likely to continue to go up.

The Johnson administration bases its opposition to the anti-war demonstrators on the ground that both Red China and North Viet Nam will take the protests as evidence the United States will pull out of Viet Nam if only the war goes on long enough. Certainly the communist regimes in both Peking and Hanoi make all possible use of dissenting voices in the West, however minor.

But seasoned diplomats both here and in Europe doubt that either Peking or Hanoi have illusions about the significance of the small minority that continues to protest against the war. They can read the meaning of the rapid buildup of American forces and the fantastic increase in the fire power the Air Force is bringing to bear and this signals intentions more realistically than a few student marchers. The protests as relayed by radio and film to the communist masses may be useful in stirring them to greater sacrifice. Even here, however, it is considered likely that in North Viet Nam, at least, the peasant is undeceived as he faces a more and more rugged existence with American bombers wiping out road and rail lines.

There is another side to the Johnson administration's concern over all forms of protest whether debates and teach-ins or demonstrations in the streets. This is the President's passionate desire for a consensus taking in every man and woman. This consensus psychology was reflected in Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers' statement reporting Johnson's "surprise that any one citizen would feel toward his country in a way that is not consistent with the national interest."

Little more than a year ago President Johnson in the thick of the presidential campaign said in a speech in Manchester, N.H., that he did not think we were ready for American boys to do the fighting for Asian boys. He went on: "So we are not going north and we are not going south; we are going to continue to try to get them to save their own freedom with their own men, with our leadership and our officer direction, and such equipment as we can furnish them. We think that losing 190 lives in the period we have been out there is bad but it is not like 190,000 that we might lose the first month if we escalated that war. . ."

Those words must have been heard in Peking and Hanoi. But in that closed, authoritarian world, where any dissent is punished by prison or death, words are weighed against deeds and American action speaks forcefully in Viet Nam today.

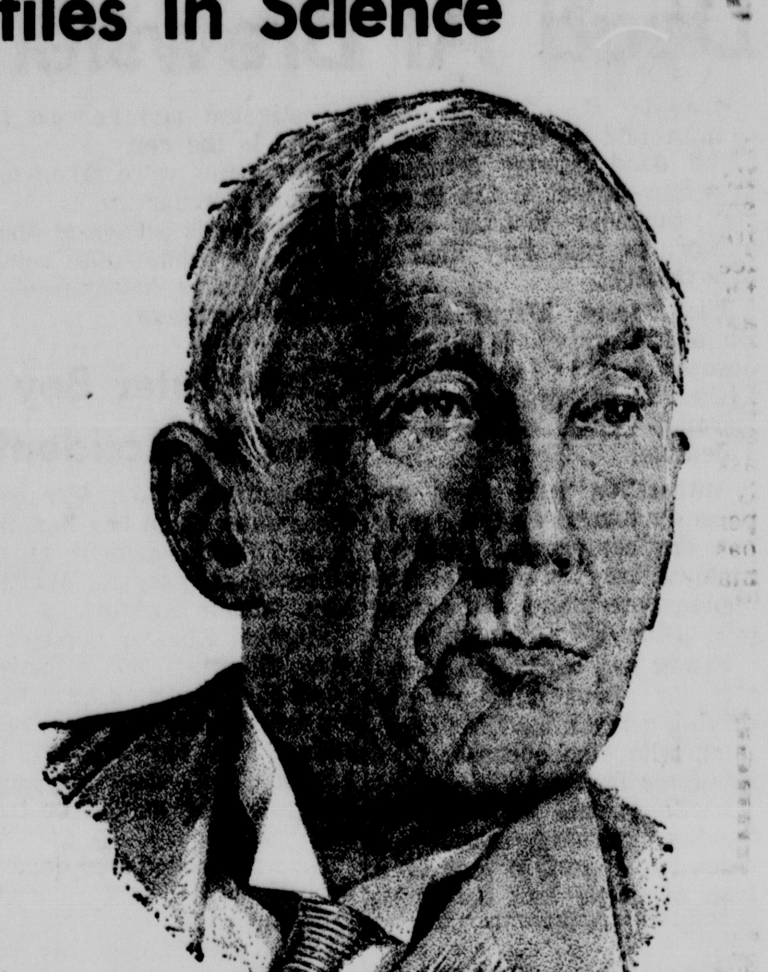
ROLAND AMUNDSEN

Profiles In Science



Roland Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, was born in 1872 at Borge, Norway, the descendent of a long line of sailors. Despite his family's history of seafarers, Amundsen, much against his wish, was forced to study medicine.

Falling unwillingly in with his parents' plans for his career, Amundsen studied to become a doctor. When he had received his degree, he did what he had secretly resolved to do: become an explorer. He took a job as deck hand on a sealing ship in order to get experience of sailing, especially in the cold north.

When he had learned first-hand some of the graver problems of arctic sailing, he studied with a German scientist who was an expert in magnetism, an indication that he already had in mind an expedition to polar regions.

Later, Amundsen went on his first Antarctic voyage and was subjected to a typical Arctic or Antarctic disaster. The ship on which he was first mate was caught in the ice and held prisoner there for more than a year. Amundsen and the rest of the crew lived for months in the Antarctic "night" but almost starved to death.

In 1903, after further voyages in the far north, Amundsen set out on his first real trip of exploration and discovery. Ever since the discovery that North America was a huge continent and not a mere group of islands lying in the path between Europe and Asia, explorers had sought the romantic Northwest Passage. It was thought of as a navigable river, strait or sea that connected the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans on the north. By Amundsen's time it was realized an ocean lay between, but the seaway had not yet been found.

Amundsen was the discoverer of the Northwest Passage, and in 1906, after harrowing adventures and narrow escapes from death, he sailed into the Bering Sea and made port at Nome, Alaska.

On this great voyage he also discovered that the magnetic North Pole shifted somewhat and was not a fixed point. Nor did it coincide with the Geographic North Pole, still undiscovered.

Amundsen tried to be first at the North Pole but while his ship was being fitted out, this was accomplished by Robert E. Peary. The Norwegian explorer then raced for the South Pole. His chief rival for the honor of discovering the South Pole was the famous Capt. Robert Scott, who died in the attempt.

Amundsen's drive for the South Pole was better organized than his expedition in the north, and he encountered good weather. In December, 1911, his Antarctic expedition camped directly on the site of the geographic pole. He named the central continental plateau in honor of the King of Norway, Haakon VII.

In later years Amundsen continued his explorations by air and died when his airplane came down somewhere in the Arctic in 1928.

NASON ON EDUCATION

Success Without Being A Genius

By DR. LESLIE J. NASON

Successful men and women often receive much attention and win awards because of their achievements. Sometimes, especially in the field of science, they are referred to as geniuses.

Young people are prone to compare themselves with such persons. Unfortunately, too many of them come to feel that only people much smarter than themselves can succeed. This attitude not only can affect their own lives, but can deprive the country of their talents.

Actually, there are so many different aspects to most professions that success comes to thousands in each field. One doesn't have to be a genius to succeed.

Even what we measure as intelligence and label as "I.Q." is not a fixed thing. It is not a case of all or nothing. The test measures developed skills and abilities; consequently, the important thing is whether or not a person develops his innate abilities and skills.

Continued learning is a requirement to success. A state employment agency head reports that, for those not going on to college, the first year after high school graduation is often a key year.

Those who merely put in their day's work with no attempt at self-development are disillusioned by the end of that first year out of school. The job has become routine and uninteresting. Advancement seems difficult or impossible to obtain. They are out of school, out of the habit of learning, and thus in a blind alley.

On the other hand, those who avail themselves of shop training programs, evening school, home study, or in some way continue learning usually make sufficient advancement in their jobs to remain optimistic and happy.

The formula for a feeling of well-being and optimism for a successful future is "Keep Learning." If unemployed, prepare for employment. For example, there are many openings for persons with real proficiency in typing and shorthand; for persons who can read and understand; and for persons who can write and spell. All of these skills respond to practice.

The young person with time on his hands needs only to apply himself diligently to assure success at some future date.

Opportunities for guidance are readily available. The state employment office is ready and willing to dispense information on training opportunities for occupations in which there is a demand for more workers.

Both public and private business schools offer guidance and counseling as well as opportunities for formal study.

But, with all of these openings available the key is still in the hands of the individual. He must be willing to put forth the effort to gain the benefits of continued learning.

Death All Around

Wilber, Neb.

Last July a very dear friend and relative returned from 16 months active duty in Viet Nam. As we talked, I took notes on some of the things he said. These are fragments and pieces which I remember. We all should read them . . .

"Crying filling the air. The smoke clearing and the water red with blood, many types of blood. Buddies half-submerged in grime. The blood of yellow people sharing that grime. Corpses everywhere, even in trees. Kids dead. I couldn't even cry after awhile. Fright and death all around. Despair, hopelessness, homesickness. A dead field radio. Blood and stink everywhere. Mold in my boots every morning. Funny, the way blood mixes in water and the way it makes pools on dust.

"Are we winning? Sure we are. Don't you know that death is popular. People die to get it every day. Yeah, we are winning . . . I guess . . ."

This young man is not a poet or writer, just an American GI who did what his country asked him to.

Art Show

Lincoln, Neb.

I disagree with those who would boycott the governor's Nebraskana Art Show slated for next June. Shows with special emphasis are not uncommon. The state is not dictating to its artists what is suitable to be painted, but is describing the nature and purpose of a particular art show, that is, restricting the type of work in a show with a special theme. It is misrepresentation to say that some unqualified group is laying down expert opinions on the intangibles which make quality in art.

It seems presumptuous to suggest, as some have, that the "best artists" will have nothing to do with such a show. Such an implication is as restrictive and prejudicial in intent as almost any art show could be. Oh, well, some will just have to settle for No. 2 ranking if they still want to exhibit, and I hope they do.

I do hope the show is not called off, and I hope the Nebraskana theme is retained. It would be nice to see in the show some paintings by even the best artists.

JFK Assassination Still Widely Remembered, Poll Shows

By LOUIS HARRIS

On the second anniversary of the assassination of John F. Kennedy, nearly 3 out of every 4 Americans say they still frequently think about it and feel sad. And the Kennedy assassination topped the list when a national cross section was asked recently which happenings of the past 10 years make them "feel ashamed to be an American."

Harris

This mixture of sorrow and guilt strikes home in a special way to residents of Dallas, where Lee Harvey Oswald fired the shots that struck down the 35th President Although the sense of personal loss is somewhat less in Dallas, the sense of guilt is significantly higher.

A cross section of adults in both the nation and Dallas was asked

"Do you often feel bad about the assassination of John F Kennedy, or do you find you don't feel that way often?"

	Nation	Dallas
Feel bad often	73%	66%
Don't feel that way	22%	34%

A similar question on whether people often reflected sadly on American casualties in Viet Nam was answered affirmatively by 48% of those interviewed nationally and by 61% of those living in Dallas.

By this measurement, the shooting of the President two years ago persists as a major source of national grief even in an era when young Americans are giving their lives in combat

Both Dallas residents and the national cross section were also asked

"What happenings of the past 10 years have taken place in the United States that made you feel ashamed to be an American" Any others?"

	Nation	Dallas
Assassination of J F K	40%	54%
Way Negroes have been treated	21%	18%
Race violence	20%	34%
Bay of Pigs invasion	15%	34%
Negro demonstrations	8	5%
Increase in crime	4%	7%
Viet Nam situation	5%	8%
National debt	2%	4
College student demonstrations	1	3%
Low moral standard	2%	2%
Taking religion out of schools	1%	2%
Ku Klux Klan	2%	1%
Never ashamed	3	5

(Figures add to more than 100% because some persons volunteered more than one event)

The assassination of President Kennedy leads the list of events volunteered in this survey, but this time the proportion in Dallas was a full 14 percentage points above that in the country as a whole The sharpness of the sense of shame over the tragedy of Nov. 22, 1963, most particularly among residents of the city where the assassin's bullets were fired, was illustrated by a Dallas businessman who said: "It could have happened anywhere, but it happened here We can't live with it, so we try to put it away But somehow it won't go away "

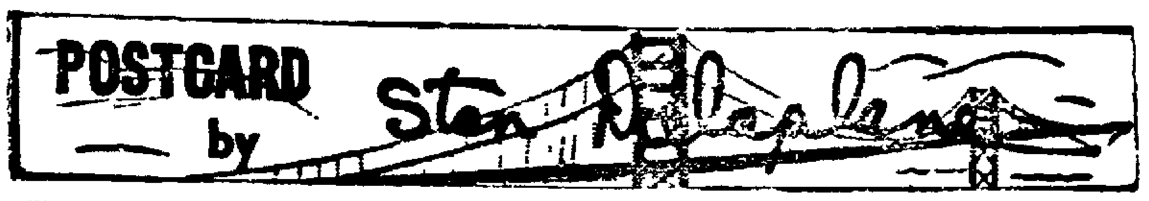
Communist China May Be Building Sub With Missile

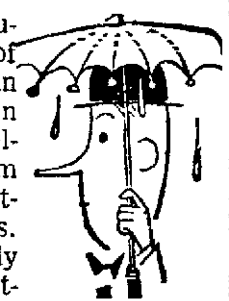
London (AP) — Communist China may be building a missile-firing submarine, the institute of Strategic Studies says in its defense survey for the year ending Oct. 31, 1965.

The institute, a private international research center, said it had received reports the submarine under construction is a Soviet-type G-class vessel "conventionally powered and able to fire three missiles with a range of about 400 miles."



POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

The first winter storm roared down on suburban Shady Acres the other day. And everything went completely to pieces.



For thousands of years man has been building shelters, from caves to split-level scatters. Yet nobody has invented a weather stripping that you couldn't use for a sieve.

A little wind and rain and you are like the Dutch moppet. Plugging the dike with your thumbs.

The first thing to go was a handsome tree It is called a "money tree" A very apt name because it is going to cost me a ruddy fortune to prop it up.

How trees survive in natural surroundings is beyond me. Plant a tree by your house and it becomes an invalid. You're always fluffing up the pillows for it.

Anyway, wind was roaring up the canyon, and rain was discovering all the chinks in the so-called weather stripping

The money tree did not blow over It just began to lean Not over the yard where it could go for all I cared I have no use for a tree that is always yelling "help."

No, it leaned over the house where it could do some real damage

As every householder knows, the tool you need is the one you don't have.

I said: "Have we got any rope around here?"

She said: "We've got some Christmas ribbon. Will that do?"

I said—I will not say what I said. I am a calm individual but am pushed beyond belief at times. You'd think somebody would keep rope around.

She said 'What do you want rope for?"

I said: "I want to tie it to a hook on the back of the bathroom door and hang myself."

☆ ☆ ☆

Ingenuity is what our pioneer forefathers had (But they were cutting DOWN trees — and I don't blame them)

I got two extension cords and tied them together. I propped the tree up and guyed it with the cords to a fence post

I came in cold and soaking. It was warm inside and everybody seemed cozy and happy.

She said "As long as you're doing things around the house, would you look in the bathroom. It seems to be stopped up."

I got out the squeejee pump and pumped And pumped and pumped and pumped I flushed it. The water rose and spilled over the floor. I mopped it up.

I said: "What happened to it for heaven's sake?"

She said: "The children put the butter knives in it. But I thought maybe you could pump them on through."

I called the plumber. He said he'd come over the next day. (At his prices, he should come out in the rain.)

☆ ☆ ☆

She said "The heater isn't working either I turned it up but there's no heat."

I said. "For the love of --. Is there anything else?"

She said "When you get it fixed you could help me hang the drapes "

I went down and looked at the heater It seemed to me the pilot light was out

She said "Shall I bring you a match?"

I said: "Kindly call the gas company. When I am interviewed on my hundredth birthday, I shall tell the reporters: 'I attribute my long life to regular doses of whiskey. And the fact that I never went looking for gas leaks with a lighted match.' "

☆ ☆ ☆

She said "While we're waiting, could you put up the rod for the drapes?"

I said: "Why not? I LIKE to do handy household things Especially when I'm wet to the skin. It keeps me nice and cool "

She said· "You don't have to shout. Why are you going in the kitchen?"

I said "I'm going to have a drink Maybe two "

Island Official Asks Aid

FEARS SINGAPORE WILL GO RED

Singapore (AP)—Defense Minister Goh Keng Swee called on Western countries Sunday to give economic aid to newly independent Singapore to prevent it from going communist.

He called on Britain, Australia and the United States, in particular, to help this strategic island create new industries and assure an export market for the products for these industries.

Goh said that if these countries are not prepared to help Singapore — "and it is in their interest to do so" — then the western powers "don't deserve to survive in this part of the world"

"We should accordingly plan our future on that basis," he said in a television debate.

Usual Technique

The Singapore government often uses television interviews, forums and debates to announce important government policies and plans.

Goh said he, Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew and Finance Minister Lim Kim San have been working on a "survival plan" for Singapore since it separated from Malaysia Aug. 9.

Goh said Singapore must convince the Western powers that this Chinese-dominated island will go communist if they do not come to its aid.

"Then I think it may be possible to give them a very powerful incentive to have some form of economic cooperation whereby we can build industries with an assured export market . . . " he went on. " . . . we have to tell them that it is to their interest to allow us a limited but free access to their markets for a wide range of goods"

Goh said if Singapore's economy is left as it is "we shall never be able to solve our economic problems."

"It is likely that unemployment will mount from year to year," he added, "and we will get a very ugly situation in the end. This country will come to a grinding halt and go communist.

"And this, of course, will have very serious consequences.

"If we were an unimportant country tucked away somewhere in the Himalayas or out in the mid-Pacific I don't think anybody would care two hoots one way or the other whether Singapore is run by a democratic government or by a communist government.

Pivotal

"But we happen to be right astride the main trade points of Asia. And we happen to be the location of an important military base pivotal to the whole system of Western defenses in this region.

"And, therefore, whether we have a democratic government in Singapore or whether we have a communist government will be a matter of the utmost importance not only to us but to the whole world.

"So the only solution for us in Singapore and for those who want to see their defense system survive over this very difficult period, is to assist us in the creation of new industries.

"What we are asking of these countries is not all that big. All we are saying is that over the next five years we want to build something like 200 factories producing 200 products. Each factory of a very moderate size — on the average perhaps of 200 to 250 workers.

"It is really a trivial concession we are asking"

Island Official Asks Aid

FEARS SINGAPORE WILL GO RED

Singapore (AP)—Defense Minister Goh Keng Swee called on Western countries Sunday to give economic aid to newly independent Singapore to prevent it from going communist.

He called on Britain, Australia and the United States, in particular, to help this strategic island create new industries and assure an export market for the products for these industries.

Goh said that if these countries are not prepared to help Singapore — "and it is in their interest to do so" — then the western powers "don't deserve to survive in this part of the world."

"We should accordingly plan our future on that basis," he said in a television debate.

Usual Technique

The Singapore government often uses television interviews, forums and debates to announce important government policies and plans.

Goh said he, Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew and Finance Minister Lim Kim San have been working on a "survival plan" for Singapore since it separated from Malaysia Aug. 9.

Goh said Singapore must convince the Western powers that this Chinese-dominated island will go communist if they do not come to its aid.

"Then I think it may be possible to give them a very powerful incentive to have some form of economic cooperation whereby we can build industries with an assured export market . . ." he went on. " . . . we have to tell them that it is to their interest to allow us a limited but free access to their markets for a wide range of goods"

Goh said if Singapore's economy is left as it is "we shall never be able to solve our economic problems."

"It is likely that unemployment will mount from year to year," he added, "and we will get a very ugly situation in the end. This country will come to a grinding halt and go communist.

"And this, of course, will have very serious consequences.

"If we were an unimportant country tucked away somewhere in the Himalayas or out in the mid-Pacific I don't think anybody would care two hoots one way or the other whether Singapore is run by a democratic government or by a communist government.

Pivotal

"But we happen to be right astride the main trade points of Asia. And we happen to be the location of an important military base pivotal to the whole system of Western defenses in this region.

"And, therefore, whether we have a democratic government in Singapore or whether we have a communist government will be a matter of the utmost importance not only to us but to the whole world.

"So the only solution for us in Singapore and for those who want to see their defense system survive over this very difficult period, is to assist us in the creation of new industries.

"What we are asking of these countries is not all that big. All we are saying is that over the next five years we want to build something like 200 factories producing 200 products. Each factory of a very moderate size — on the average perhaps of 200 to 250 workers.

'Problem Child' Was On Vessel

Miami, Fla. (AP)—The Coast Guard Monday will begin an investigation into the burning and sinking of the cruise ship Yarmouth Castle off the Bahamas with the loss of 89 lives.

A day before the start of the investigation, The Miami Herald said authorities already are checking a man the paper described as a 36-year-old "problem child" in the ship fire.

The man, a passenger aboard the Yarmouth Castle when it burned Nov. 13, was not identified by the newspaper. The Herald said authorities in his home city, also not named, said two fires of undetermined origin broke out in the past four years in a commercial enterprise operated by the man's family.

No Charges

Officials questioned the man but lodged no charges against him, the newspaper said.

The Herald said the man had a record of mental illness and had been a patient in state mental institutions. It said psychiatrists described his as an "adult problem child."

The Coast Guard investigation will be headed by Rear Adm. Louis Thayer, who said it may take three weeks or more.

ABBY

a very bad 'thank you'

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I was surprised at your answer to the mother whose son was coming home from Vietnam. She asked if you thought it was all right to go overboard with "welcome home" signs in her front yard surrounded by flags, and you said, "Why not? And line up a brass band if you can." If the mother goes through with this kind of welcome for her son, he will resent it till his dying day. War is sheer hell, Abby. Especially a jungle war. And any man who has won three medals for bravery, such as this boy has, is bound to be emotionally "shook." Yours is the typical feminine approach. Ask your husband, or son. A homecoming such as this mother has planned would embarrass any veteran who has seen action. A small, quiet homecoming with the family and a few close friends is all any veteran wants. Save the fireworks for the Fourth of July.

KOREAN VETERAN
AT HOME IN CHICAGO

DEAR VETERAN: You speak with authority and I bow to your judgment. But I'd like to hear from some of our boys in Vietnam who are dreaming of the day they come home. You DESERVE a brass band—but does anyone want one?

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: Our son was in Vietnam for one year, and he survived the worst the Far East had to offer. He arrived last week at the Newark Airport and we greeted him with a large 16-foot banner with huge red block letters spelling out "WELCOME HOME, SON!" I thought of the idea when he wrote to tell us he was coming home. My husband went along with the idea and I am glad he did. Everyone who saw that banner seemed happy for us. And no one thought we were "bragging" too much for a boy who had risked his life every day in the cause of humanity. Our son was so thrilled he took a picture of the banner to keep forever. So tell that other proud mother of a Vietnamese hero that if she wants to borrow our banner, we'll be glad to send it to her.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ALL MY SHARP-EYED READERS (AND ESPECIALLY THE GENTLEMAN WHO ASKED ME IF I GOT MY HISTORICAL INFORMATION FROM BUBBLE GUM WRAPPERS): Recently I stated that Michelangelo was born in 1475 and at the age of 90 he finished painting the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel, on his back, on a scaffold. I am now properly advised that Michelangelo died shortly before his 90th birthday. So the only portion of my statement which is accurate is that the great master was born in 1475, and 90 years later he was indeed on his back. I stand corrected from 50 States, Canada, Italy and Mexico.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	4 ♥

Opening lead — ace of spades.

One swallow doesn't make a summer, and one bridge hand doesn't prove a theory, but this deal gave the experts something to think about when it occurred during the match between Italy and the United States in 1959.

Everything seemed normal when the hand was played at the first table with the Italian stars, Avarelli and Belladonna, holding the North-South cards.

They quickly reached four hearts and West cashed the A-K of spades, followed by a club to the ace. East returned a low spade, Belladonna ruffing with the nine and West with the queen. East later scored a diamond and the Italians went down two—100 points.

At the second table, with an American pair North-South, the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	2 ♣ !	2 ♥
3 ♣	3 ♦	Pass	4 ♥
Pass	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
Pass	Dble

Not only that, but West (Siniscalco, playing with Forquet) made the contract for a score of 550 points. He lost only a heart and a club. Moreover, there was nothing the defense could do about it.

Siniscalco's two club overcall with such a mangy suit was shocking, by expert standards, but even more shocking was the excellent result he obtained by the bid. Practically all experts stress safety as the chief ingredient of an overcall, and here was Siniscalco casting safety to the winds in order to mention a weak six-card suit headed by the jack.

It reminded one of the time in the 1957 match when this same Siniscalco overcalled a club by an American player with one spade (vulnerable) on:

♠76432 ♥J1094 ♦KQ5 ♣3

His partner jumped to two notrump with ♠A5 ♥A8652 ♦1092 ♣KQ6, over which Siniscalco bid three hearts. Forquet raised to four hearts, which went down one, but, at one point in the play, Siniscalco actually could have made the contract.

NEWS

of the suburban areas

Books and more books have been written on the most favorable type of education for youngsters. One of the most recent approaches, however, came out in a book called Summerhill by A. S. Neil. The author tells of an English school system, where children are allowed to flip their chocolate pudding to the ceiling or any other such act.

This morning in Wedgewood Manor, we hear that a follower of this educational practice was a house guest of one of its citizens.

WEDGEWOOD MANOR

Mr. and Mrs. William Maly had as their guest, C. T. (Tom) Weatherford, Jr. from Roscoe, N.Y. A former resident of Lincoln, Mr. Weatherford is now head master of the private school, Summerlane. The visitor, we hear, not only entertained the family with the latest trends in education, but turned out to be an excellent guitar player.

PATRICIAN HEIGHTS

One new resident in the Patrician Heights neighborhood is Michael Patrick Reilley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Reilley of 5320 Wilshire Blvd. Young Michael now two weeks old, arrived with the ghosts of the Halloween season—on October 31. On his welcoming committee were his sisters, Ginger and Tammi, his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Reilley, and his grandfather, Hans Frovick, of Lincoln.

EASTRIDGE

There is at least one family in Eastridge that has plans for a big turkey dinner plus a trip to the Memorial Stadium on Thanksgiving. Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Swarts have on their guest list their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. James McNerney of Overland Park, Kan. Their Kansas City, Kan., cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Horsted and their children, Christy and Bart, also are planning to travel to Lincoln for the festivities. And coming for the November 25 holiday will be Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kautzman and their son, Tim, from Stanton.

EASTBOROUGH

Lincoln residents have found time to plan non-holiday events, too. In Eastborough life seemed to go on as usual.

Entertaining bridge club Thursday evening was Mrs. John Noble. Members at the dessert bridge group were Mrs. Keith Hildreth, Mrs. Glen Manske, Mrs. Vernon Williams, and Mrs. Lisle Robinett. Guests for the evening were Mrs. Clarence Bangert and Mrs. Patrick Donovan.

LINCOLN HEIGHTS

Wednesday will be a big day for one family in the Lincoln Heights area. TALK of the town

We are certain that everyone knows that the Lincoln Center for Community Services was dedicated on Sunday afternoon.

But perhaps you didn't know that Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woods Jr., of Lake Forest, Ill., and their daughter, Miss Lucia Woods of New York City, were in Lincoln during the weekend, the guests of Mrs. Thomas C. Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Woods and Miss Woods, of course, attended the dedication ceremonies on Sunday, but on Saturday evening Mrs. Thomas Woods paid courtesy to her guests when she entertained at dinner at the Lincoln Country Club.

Coming from Omaha on Sunday to attend the dedication with the Woods family were Mrs. Woods' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Petersen.

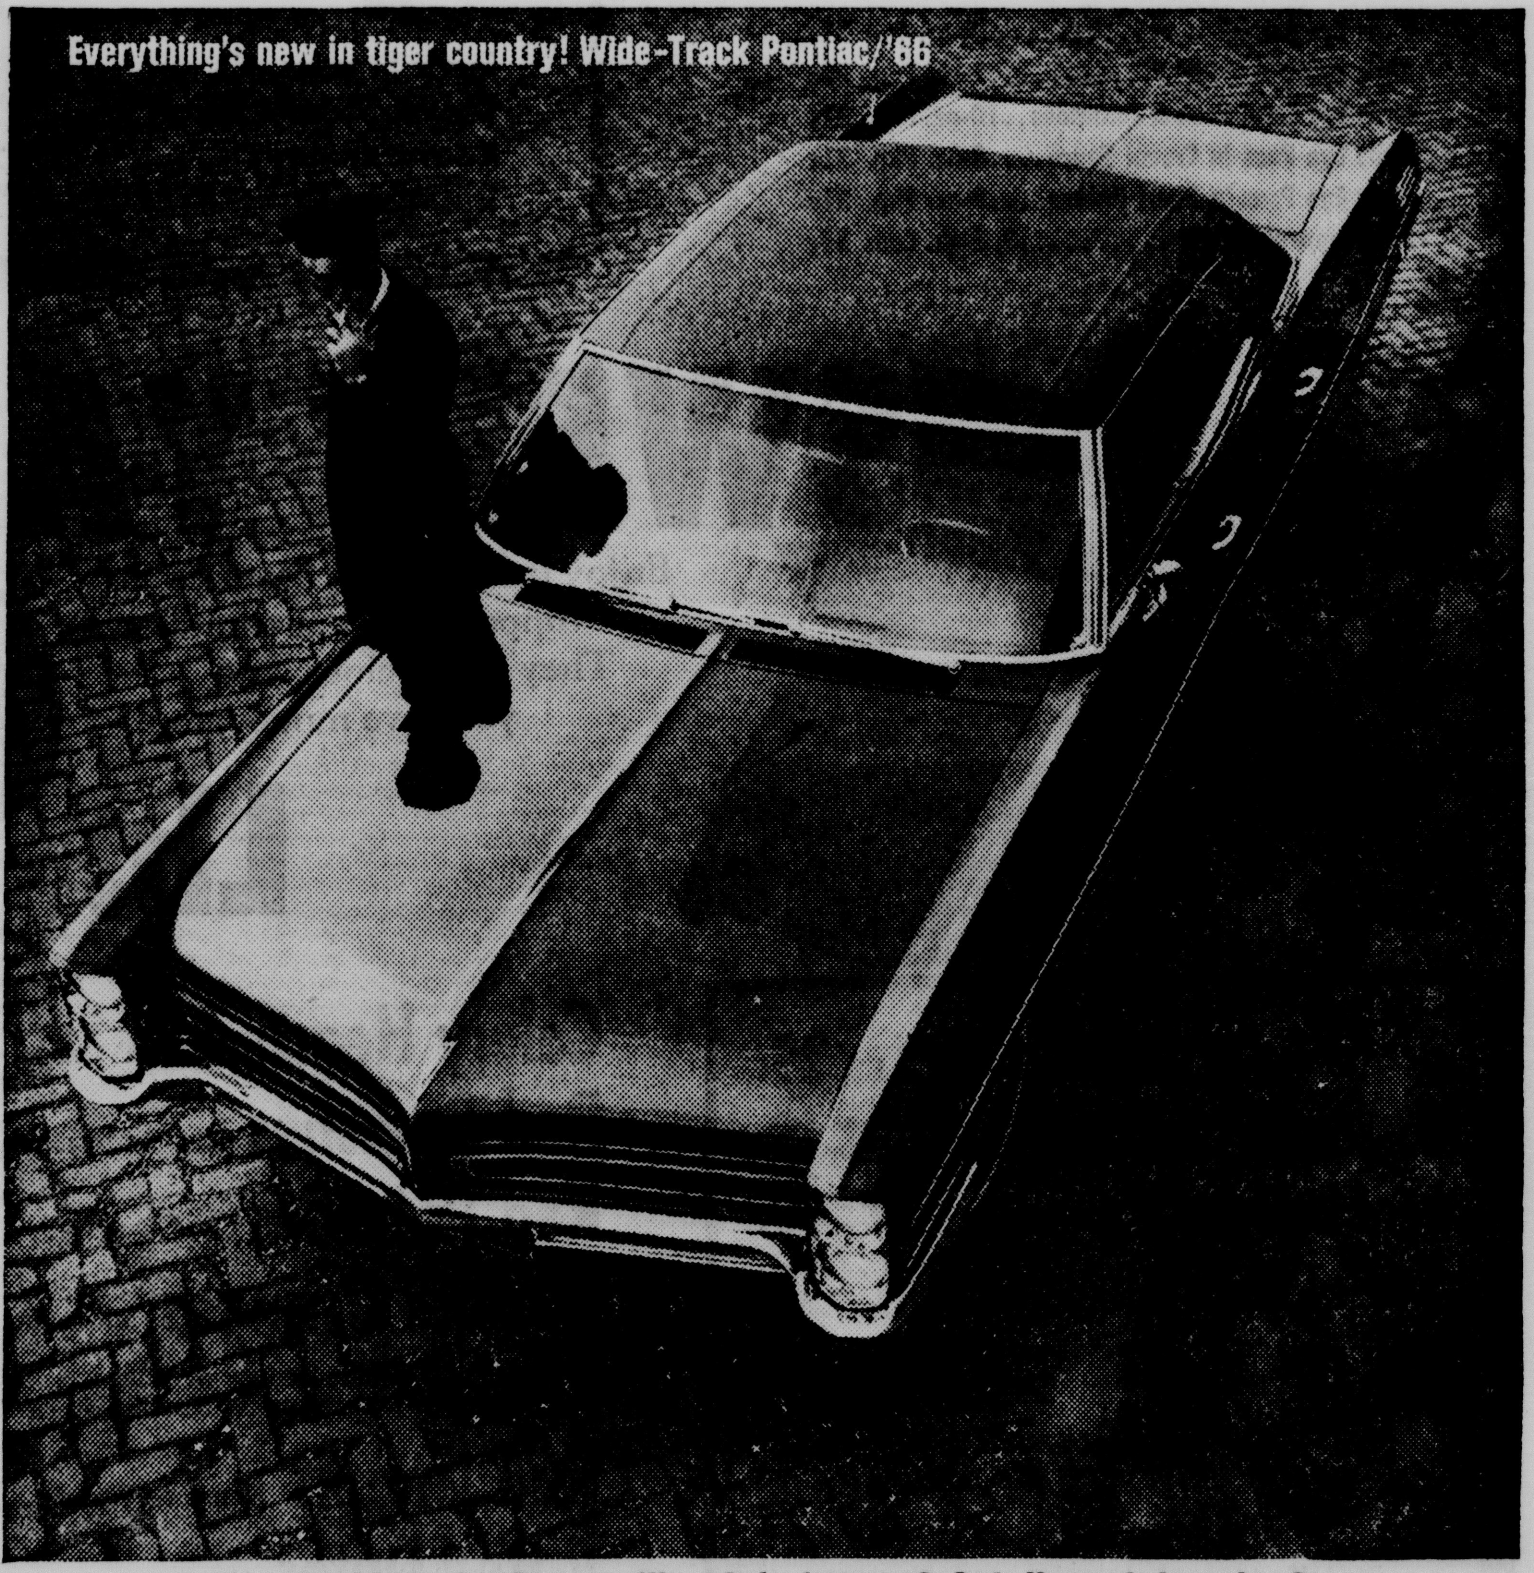
* * *

From now until Thursday no day would be complete without news of Thanksgiving activity.

We learned that Mrs. P. Rolfe Halligan is to be a Thanksgiving day hostess when she entertains at dinner at Hotel Cornhusker. The guest list, composed of members of the family, will include Mrs. Halligan's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Childs and their family—and Mr. and Mrs. John R. Doyle and their two sons, Tim and L. R.

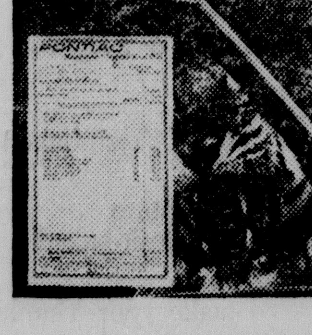
* * *

The post-Thanksgiving calendar tells us that next Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. James Crabill and Mr. and Mrs. Flavel Wright will be dinner hosts and hostesses when they entertain at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Crabill. The party will pay prenuptial courtesy to Miss Janice Walt and her fiance, Lt. Thomas Poggemeyer whose marriage will be solemnized on Dec. 4.



You could go for Bonneville-style luxury? Catalina-style price?

You don't have very far to go—new Executive.



If you thought the Star Chief was something special before, wait until you shake hands with its swaggering successor: the new Star Chief Executive. That sleek new 4-door hardtop you're smiling at above. Plus an elegant new 4-door sedan. Plus a dashing all-new hardtop coupe. (And don't let the "new" scare you. We wouldn't think of changing Star Chief's famous big-car-everything-but-price character. You still get the big V-8, superbly luxurious interior, and plush Bonneville chassis and ride at a price that reads like a mistake in your favor. Except that you can get it in three swinging models now instead of two.) One more thing. Now that you've met our new Star Chief Executive, don't be so formal. Just call it Executive. Special safety note: All 1966 Pontiacs include dual-speed windshield wipers, windshield washers, outside rear view mirror, padded dash and sun visors, back-up lights, and seat belts front and rear (be sure to fasten them before driving).

NEWS

of the suburban areas

Books and more books have been written on the most favorable type of education for youngsters. One of the most recent approaches, however, came out in a book called Summerhill by A. S. Neil. The author tells of an English school system, where children are allowed to flip their chocolate pudding to the ceiling or any other such act.

This morning in Wedgewood Manor, we hear that a follower of this educational practice was a house guest of one of its citizens.

WEDGEWOOD MANOR

Mr. and Mrs. William Maly had as their guest, C. T. (Tom) Weatherford, Jr. from Roscoe, N.Y. A former resident of Lincoln, Mr. Weatherford is now head master of the private school, Summerlane. The visitor, we hear, not only entertained the family with the latest trends in education, but turned out to be an excellent guitar player.

PATRICIAN HEIGHTS

One new resident in the Patrician Heights neighborhood is Michael Patrick Reilley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Reilley of 5320 Wilshire Blvd. Young Michael now two weeks old, arrived with the ghosts of the Halloween season—on October 31. On his welcoming committee were his sisters, Ginger and Tammi, his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Reilley, and his grandfather, Hans Frovick, of Lincoln.

EASTRIDGE

There is at least one family in Eastridge that has plans for a big turkey dinner plus a trip to the Memorial Stadium on Thanksgiving. Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Swarts have on their guest list their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. James McNerney of Overland Park, Kan. Their Kansas City, Kan., cousins, Mr and Mrs Eldon Horsted and their children, Christy and Bart, also are planning to travel to Lincoln for the festivities. And coming for the November 25 holiday will be Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kautzman and their son, Tim, from Stanton.

EASTBOROUGH

Lincoln residents have found time to plan non-holiday events, too. In Eastborough life seemed to go on as usual.

Entertaining bridge club Thursday evening was Mrs. John Noble. Members at the dessert bridge group were Mrs. Keith Hildreth, Mrs. Glen Manske, Mrs. Vernon Williams, and Mrs. Lisle Robinett. Guests for the evening were Mrs. Clarence Bangert and Mrs. Patrick Donovan.

Biggest November Snow Hits Berlin, Clogs Transportation

Berlin (AP) —Berlin was hit Sunday by the heaviest November snowfall in 73 years. A weather bureau spokesman said eight inches of snow is clogging city streets and that by Monday a total of 10 inches can be expected.

"It is the biggest and strongest snowfall in Berlin in any November since the beginning of recorded data in 1892," he added.

The temperature stood at 25 degress, the 10th straight day of freezing or below-freezing temperatures.

All trains into communist-isolated West Berlin were reported running late, some as much as five hours, but air traffic was described as running on fairly normal schedule.

Snow and ice made driving hazardous over roads connecting West Berlin with West Germany. A U.S. spokesman said allied personnel driving civilian vehicles were being held up by allied military police until road conditions improved.

The East German news agency ADN said heavy snow covered all sections of northern East Germany, with the snowfall averaging eight inches and drifts in some places reaching 24 inches.

The wind - whipped snow storm pounded most of Germany. In higher elevations in the Sauerland and Harz regions, nearly 10 inches of snow was reported.

The East German radio broadcast an appeal to all off-duty railroad men to report to their stations and assist in track clearing work. Trains were reported running late in both East and West Germany.

Winds reaching hurricane velocity lashed the Balitc Sea coast of Schlewswig-Holstein, cauging traffic-stopping snow drifts and high water.

In the North Sea, near the island of Borkum, the storm broke the lines of an oil-boring platform from its guide ships. The platform, with 39 men aboard, drifted 2½ miles before it was secured by rescue boats. There were no injuries.

Ike Going To Capital Via Train

Ft. Gordon, Ga. (AP)—Former president Dwight D. Eisenhower is ending a two-week hospital stay after a heart attack and leaving Monday for Washington on a special train in what amounts to a military maneuver under tight security.

The five-star general's own quarters on the eight-car train will be a car that has been worked over to serve as a hospital unit, with space for a hospital bed and for medical equipment. Attending doctors and nurses will be with their patient all the way on the overnight run.

The train is to leave Ft. Gordon about 6:30 p.m. EST. There will be one stop along the way to service the train—time and place will not be announced—and it will arrive in Washington at a time and place which also are not being announced.

12 To 14 Hours

The run from Augusta usually takes 12 to 14 hours. At the Washington end, Eisenhower will be taken by ambulance to Walter Reed Army Hospital to continue recuperation from a heart attack that began with chest pains early on the morning of Nov. 9.

The former president was rushed from his vacation home at the Augusta National Golf Club to the Army hospital at Ft. Gordon and has been there ever since. This was his 13th day at the hospital and probably Eisenhower felt he was one of the luckiest men alive—just because he was alive at 75 after having had a second heart seizure. His first was ten years ago at Denver, Colo.

And if all goes well as it has for a good many days now, Eisenhower can be thankful on Thanksgiving Day at a dinner at Walter Reed hospital with his family.

Out Briefly

Saturday he got out of the hospital briefly—and only a few feet—for an airing on the porch of his suite. He chatted with newsmen, told them he was feeling fine and the doctors assured him that any additional damage his heart has suffered is slight.

Then Saturday morning, the physicians reported he had had an excellent night and they were well pleased with his condition.

African Students Say Force Needed In Rhodesia Crisis

By GARY GRAUL
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska's African students insist that force is necessary for settlement of the Rhodesian crisis.

They also doubt the sincerity of British and American attempts to bring down the regime of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's white minority.

These two attitudes became apparent at a spirited symposium sponsored by the African Student Association of Nebraska Sunday evening.

Nigerian panelist Festus Obioha accused the U.S. of "window-dressing—in trying to appear that they are doing something, while they are really doing nothing."

Sharp Criticism

A statement by British professor Dr. Donald Meredith that "Britain has realized that force is of no use at all" drew sharp criticism from Africans in the audience.

One of them, E. M. Maryogo of Tanzania, pointed out that Britain has used force effectively in many cases. He specifically noted the case of Aden earlier this year.

Meredith replied that Aden was "an exception," and asked, "Why is it always necessary to rush in and use force? Is this the African way?"

This statement evoked an uproar that moderator Anthony Bryan of Trinidad and Tobago had difficulty quieting. The predominantly African audience became inflamed several times.

One such case was when an unidentified Latin American accused the mass of Rhodesians of being apathetic toward the crisis. He asked, "How can 200,000 whites keep four million Africans in check?"

Factories Closed

Rhodesian Godwin Dube replied that several factories had been forced to close due to African rioting. Government censorship, he added, may have prevented news of further resistance from getting out of the country.

Pakistani panelist Bashir Ahmed suggested that Britain would never allow armed force to be used for fear that the Russians would use this as an excuse to send in an army and gain a foothold in Africa.

However, Ahmed admitted that economic sanctions will not be successful because goods could be shipped into South Africa or bordering Portuguese colonies and from there to Rhodesia.

Nigerian Obioha added, "The sanctions Britain has imposed are even less effective than the ones the United States has imposed—which do no good at all."

Dube justified African insistence on force by saying, "Nobody asked anybody to come into our country and tell us what to do.

"The system of democracy has been imported as a whole and imposed on the Africans. It should have been adjusted to the African people."

5 City Firemen Will Be Raised To Lieutenants

Five Lincoln firemen will be raised to lieutenant effective Jan. 2, Fire Chief Roscoe Benton announced.

He said the announcement of the promotions was made early to allow time to plan the reorganization necessary when the Fire Department installs the three-shift system at the first of the year.

Initiation of the three-shift system became necessary when the last Legislature made mandatory a 60-hour week for firemen, Benton said.

Fire Department personnel, all of whom are presently firemen first class, who will be raised to the new rank are Roger Chapp, Norbert Zweiner, Robert Knollenberg, Richard Stiles and Jerry Weisser.

African Mother Has Quadruplets

Lisbon, Portugal (AP) — An African mother gave birth to quadruplets, three girls and one boy, in Vila Andrade, Eastern Mozambique, the Lusitania news agency said Sunday.

Mother and children were reported in good condition. Josefa Humanhale and her farmer husband, Janota, have five other children.

NU Orchestra, Soprano Excite Concert-Goers

By RUTH ARDIS

Lincoln concert-goers have had the pleasure of hearing several fine guest musicians in the past two weeks. Certainly Sunday night's performance by mezzosoprano Helen Vanni would have to rank among the best.

Miss Vanni appeared as soloist in the annual fall concert presented by the University of Nebraska Symphony Orchestra with Emanuel Wishnow conducting.

Miss Vanni possesses a glorious voice through which she conveyed exceptional artistry to arias of Mozart, Massanet, Gluck, and Rossini. In the "Letter Aria" from "Werther" by Massanet she rose to heights of dramatic and interpretative impressiveness.

Warmth, Elegance

Although this aria is not as well-known as the others which she sang, it brought out the warmth and emotional elegance of her voice.

Two of Cheribino's arias from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" and Divinites du Styx from "Alceste" by Gluck were also sung with style and polish. However, it was the encore "Una Voce poco fa" from "Barber of Seville" by Rossini which lifted the audience right out of the seats.

Miss Vanni has sung this aria many times at the Metropolitan Opera House, but always in Italian.

Sunday night she used the English version which she has sung with the Santa Fe Opera Company, and the performance left the capacity audience at the Nebraska Union begging for more.

The excitement which characterized Miss Vanni's performance was also evident throughout the orchestral portions of the concert. Mr. Wishnow had selected a program full of color and rhythmic variety.

The orchestra is a highly proficient student group — well-balanced, and full of enthusiasm. What they occasionally lacked in precision, they made up for in spirit. Paul Creston's multi-colored and rhythmically attractive "Dance Overture" provided an excellent opening number. The familiar "Espana" by Chabrier and Gliere's "Russian Sailor's Dance" also served as fine show pieces for the group.

Flowing Lyric Style

Two movements of Howard Hansons Nordic Symphony concluded the program. The work is undeniably romantic in mood, and Mr. Wishnow conducted the Andante in a flowing lyric style which made it a fine contrast to the rhythmic works which had preceded it.

The concert was presented under the auspices of the Nebraska Union and the University of Nebraska Music Department. Although Miss Vanni appears frequently on the concert and opera stage both here and abroad, this was her first appearance with a University group.

She was quite pleased with the high caliber of performance and with the opportunity of identifying herself with a group of this kind in her native Midwest.

Biggest November Snow Hits Berlin, Clogs Transportation

Berlin (AP) —Berlin was hit Sunday by the heaviest November snowfall in 73 years. A weather bureau spokesman said eight inches of snow is clogging city streets and that by Monday a total of 10 inches can be expected.

It is the biggest and strongest snowfall in Berlin in any November since the beginning of recorded data in 1892," he added.

Africans Push World Boycotts

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — African diplomats professed to be hopeful Sunday that, for the second time in three days, the U.N. Security Council will call for a world economic boycott against Europeans resisting majority rule in Africa. But Westerners were skeptical.

The Africans' hopes were pinned on a resolution aimed at forcing Portugal to give up its African territories—Portugese Guinea, Angola and Mozambique. The resolution, due for debate Monday would have the council call on all countries "to take all the measures either separately or collectively to boycott all Portuguese imports and exports."

It resembled one the council adopted Saturday to oust the white minority government now rebelling against Britain in Rhodesia. That resolution called on all countries "to do their utmost in order to break all economic relations with Southern Rhodesia including an embargo on oil and petroleum products." It sailed through the council 10-0, with only France abstaining.

The three Asian-African members of the council—the Ivory Coast, Jordan and Malaysia—were sponsoring the anti-Portugese proposal.

The resolution, presented on behalf of all 36 organized African countries, has things in it that caused the United States, Britain and even the Soviet Union to turn down an African-backed Ivory Coast resolution on Rhodesia.

It says Portugal's Africa policy "endangers international peace and security." A similar remark about the Rhodesian situation in the Ivory Coast resolution brought behind-the-scenes British opposition backed by the United States, because it implied the council was embarking upon "enforcement measures"—diplomatic, economic, communication and transport boycotts and, if necessary, eventual military force.

Under the U.N. charter, a finding that there is an actual threat to international peace is a first step toward invoking enforcement measures, as distinguished from the "peaceful means" to be applied in settling problems whose continuance is merely "likely to endanger" international peace.

Bolivia and Uruguay won Britain's approval with a compromise Rhodesia resolution.

Floyd 'Crusading' For Title . . . . . . Sellout Crowd Expected

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP)—Cassius Clay, self-admitted king of the world, rules a strong favorite to retain his heavy weight boxing title Monday night against 30-year-old Floyd Patterson, the only man to win and lose the crown twice.

Fearful of another quick knockout after seeing three of the last four title matches end in the first round most boxing people make Clay a cinch. The oddsmakers along the garish neonlighted strip where gambling is legal quote prices that average out to 3-1 in man-to-man wagering They give even money that the fight won't go 15 rounds.

However, the same experts rated Patterson a sure thing at 4-1 against Ingemar Johansson in 1959 and quoted 7-1 on Sonny Liston over Clay in the Miami Beach, Fla. bout in 1961 that ended with Liston quitting in his corner, claiming a damaged shoulder.

A sellout crowd of 8,300 will pay over $300,000 to see the 15-round match at Convention Center slated for 9:30 p.m., CST.

Many more will watch the closed circuit version to be beamed to 225 locations in the United States and to the British Isles by the Early Bird satellite. The fight also will also will be carried on ABC network radio.

Fred Brooks, president of Sports Vision, the closed circuit company with 1,000,000 seats to fill, estimated Clay's 40 per cent of everything may hit $750,000 and Patterson's 20 per cent may reach $375,000.

Patterson hopes to erase the memory of those two humiliating first-round knock outs by Sonny Liston, the second of which was scored in this same ring in 1963. As Patterson puts it, he is crusading to "take the title away from that organization Black Muslims and give it back to the world."

Most people prefer to disregard the crusading aspects of this match and concentrate on the boxing ability of the 23-year-old Clay, who insists of being called by his Muslin name of Muhammad Ali, and the experience of the erratic exchampion.

Those who are inclined to give Patterson a shot point to Clay's close fight with Doug Jones on the way up in 1963 and the fact that he wanted to climb out of the ring after the fourth round of his first fight with Liston.

They recall that Clay has fought only twice in 29 months. The punch that knocked out Liston in the first round last May 25 at Lewiston, Maine, still is the subject of debate.

These factors and Patterson's ability to punch as attested in his 32 knockouts in a 43-4 career are marshalled in his defense.

But the vast majority, about 3-½ to 1 in a pre-fight poll of boxing writers, think the 6-foot-3 Clay has the speed, skill and punch to take advantage of Patterson's weak chin. They point to Patterson's numerous knockdowns and his three knockout defeats, two by Liston and one by Johansson. Clay is unbeaten in 21 pro starts and has 17 knockouts.

Patterson has had five fights since the Liston debacle. He stopped Sante Amonti in eight, outpointed Eddie Machin in 12, knocked out Charley Powell in six, won over George Chuvalo in 12 gruelling rounds and stopped Tod Herring in three.

It was the Chuvalo fight in Madison Square Garden last Feb. 1 that re-established Floyd as a contender. However, Ernie Terrell whipped Chuvalo more conclusively in a defense of his World Boxing Association title in Toronto last month.

It would take a Philadelphia lawyer to unravel the title involvements of this bout. The WBA withdrew recogniation from Clay because of a return bout contract with Liston and bestowed the crown on Terrell after an elimination win.

Although Nevada is a WBA state and Jim Deskin, executive secretary of the Nevada commission is WBA president, this is being billed as a world championship fight in every gambling casino in town.

The two fighters are supposed to post bonds that they will make their next bout against Terrell, currently under fire by the California commission for alleged gang control.

Two judges and a referee will handle the bout. Scoring will be on the five-point must system by which the winner of a round must get five points and the loser four or less. There will be an automatic eight-count in effect but the rule about the fight ending after three knockdowns in the same round has been waived.

The fighters will wear eight-ounce gloves and the referee has been instructed to insist that a boxer scoring a knockdown go to a neutral corner. The ring officials will be announced at ring time.

The weigh-in will be held at 1 p.m., CST, or 11 a.m. locally. Clay expects to come in at about 206 pounds. Patterson is shooting at 192.

Two live 10-rounders will be held at the Boston Garden Monday night as a preliminary to the closed-TV telecast of the Clay-Patterson bout. Heavyweights Marion Connor of Boston and Boston Jacobs of New York meet in one, with welter - weights Charlie Scott of Philadelphia and Lennie Sparks of Halifax, N.S., in the other.

Joe Orbillo, of Wilmington, Calif. meets Billy Stephan of St. Louis, in a heavyweight bout Thanksgiving night, Thursday, in a 10-rounder at Los Angeles.

Roscoe Gregory of Brooklyn takes on Marcus Morales of Puerto Rico in a lightweight eight-rounder Tuesday night in New York's Sunnyside Garden.

—OILERS FALL, 41-14—

Namath Hurls Jets To Win

New York (AP)—Rookie quarterback Joe Namath continued his rapid development Sunday, passing for four touchdowns in a game for the first time in his pro career as the New York Jets crushed Houston 51-14 for their fourth consecutive victory.

The triumph lifted the Jets into second place in the Eastern Division of the American Football League with a 4-5-1 record while Houston dropped into third with a 4-6 mark.

The Jets' four straight victories also equals the longest winning streak in the AFL this season.

Namath, starting at quarterback for the third straight game, completed 17 passes in 26 attempts for 217 yards. The Jets gained 519 yards over-all. Namath hit Don Maynard with four and 34-yard touchdown tosses, connected with George Sauer on a play covering 20 yards and hit Curly Johnson with a six-yard flip as the Jets grabbed a 34-0 lead.

Johnson, the Jets' punting specialist, was playing tight end in place of Dee Mackey, who suffered a broken left collarbone during the second period.

Namath left the game early in the fourth quarter after hitting Maynard with the 34-yarder, and Mike Taliaferro, who was the starting quarterback when the season began, played the rest of the way.

Namath, who went into the game with eight touchdown passes, never before had passed for more than two touchdowns in one pro game. He had one pass intercepted, breaking a string of 77 attempts without a steal.

While Namath was riddling the leaky Houston Secondary, Bill Mathis broke through the Oiler line for 126 yards on 14 carries. Mathis raced 79 yards to the six on the second play of the game, setting up Namath's first touchdown pass to Maynard.

Mathis' run from scrimmage was the longest in club history. Jim Turner, meanwhile, tied an AFL field goal record when he connected for his second of the game in the second period, giving him seven in a row.

The Jets' defense again proved tough to rush against. The Oilers were able to gain only eight yards on the ground in the first half before alternating quarterbacks George Blanda and Don Trull took to the air in an attempt to get them back in the game.

The Oilers finally scored with 3:15 left in the game when Trull raced three yards around end.

—'FIVE GREEN KNIGHTS OF FRIGHT'—

Spartan Defense One Of Greatest

South Bend, Ind. (AP)—To the roll call for college football's immortal defensive units — such as Notre Dame's Seven Mules of the 1920s and Fordhams Seven Blocks of Granite a decade later - add Michigan State's Five Green Knights of Fright.

It's a line-up that will be remembered - by Notre Dame and other teams - for years to come.

This monstrous, mobile forward wall proved the decisive factor Saturday in the Spartans 12-3 victory over the Fighting Irish in a game that may decide the national championship.

The five-man line, averaging 244 pounds, stopped Notre Dames powerful running attack and limited the Irish to a minus 12 yards on the ground.

It stopped Notre Dame's two most dangerous ball-carriers cold - Bill Wolski, minus-eight yards, and Nick Eddy, minus-three. It limited the country's second strongest offensive team on the ground —Nebraska is No. 1—to three first downs.

"I can't recall statistics like this," Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian said afterward. "They played a fantastic defensive game."

"The defenses dominated," said Michigan State coach Duffy Daugherty. "I've never seen a performance like this one by our team today."

After Notre Dame got off to a 3-0 lead in the opening minutes on a 32-yard field goal by Ken Ivan, the Spartans smashed back for winning touchdowns in the third and fourth periods.

Daugherty disclosed later that at intermission the defensive players promised the offensive men that if the offense would score, the defense would hold the Irish scoreless the rest of the way.

KELLY PETERSEN . . . Solves Devaney's Problem.

NU Center Petersen 'Arrives'

Kelly Petersen has finally "arrived" as a Nebraska football star, fulfilling a hopeful prediction made last spring by offensive line coach Carl Selmer.

One of the big gaps in Nebraska's offensive line was at center—a spot filled so well by All Big-Eight Lyle Sittler, now a coach at Lawrence, Kan., High School.

During spring practice, Selmer opined: "I think Kelly can do the job, but he's got to improve and use his ability."

Petersen didn't get the No. 1 job in spring practice, yielding to Harry Tuthill most of the way. But Tuthill turned up ineligible and Petersen got his chance.

"Statistically, we rank as a sound team," Selmer grins. "And Kelly has been playing center for us all the way. It's a cinch he's been doing a fine job."

Petersen, a 223-pounder from Cozad, came to Nebraska as a fullback.

"We didn't feel he had the speed or quickness for fullback," Selmer said. "Now, however, he has progressed a great deal, picked up a real understanding of the game and — most important — he has a position."

Selmer praises Petersen's blocking this fall as the Huskers have defeated nine straight opponents and lead the nation in rushing offense.

"The center is a vital man," Selmer said. "He's always got to worry about 'Mike' (slang for the defensive middle guard.) 'Mike' is always trying to run around his head, and Kelly's always got a difficult blocking assignment."

One of the most worrisome positions for the Huskers in September was center, and one of the soundest now is center — thanks to Kelly Petersen.

"You bet," Selmer said. "You can say Kelly has done a darn good job for us."

Huskers Again Near Perfect Mark

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney who has been responsible for pushing the 1941 Husker Rose Bowl team into the background can do the same thing to Jumbo Stiehm's Stiehm - Rollers Thursday at Memorial Stadium.

Devaney shoved the Rose Bowlers from the limelight in which they bathed for two decades with his three consecutive bowl appearances and a fourth coming up.

All that Jumbo Stiehm has over Devaney is that he coached the last unbeaten Nebraska team in 1915. The Huskers by whipping Oklahoma Thursday can give modern football followers relief from old-timers' talk of those days.

Devaney's gridders came within one game of a perfect season last year when Oklahoma stopped those ideas in the final contest at Norman.

For the second year in a row then, Nebraska goes into the Oklahoma contest with a 9-0 record and also for the second year in a row they have a signed bowl contract already in hand.

A year ago, the Huskers had accepted a Cotton Bowl berth after setting up a 9-0 record. This year, the Orange Bowl got the Huskers and NU fans who will be leaving their turkey dinners until later Thursday hope they don't see a repeat of last year's finale.

The Huskers will be strong favorites and if going for an unbeaten season isn't enough incentive for the Scarlet-clad gridders, then appearing before a national television audience should be.

And in all the hoopla of unbeaten seasons and bowl talk, one significant fact still remains — the Huskers still are not the sole Big Eight champions and they won't be if they don't win Thursday.

Nebraska is assured of at least a tie, but that is all they are assured of with Missourians likely being among the more interested television viewers.

Missouri, which finished its season Saturday with a 44-20 lashing of Kansas, can tie the Huskers for the league title if NU slips against the Sooners. The Tigers have already etched their 6-1 mark in the conference logs and Nebraska stands 6-0 in league play.

Oklahoma also has something to shoot for aside from the thoughts of springing a major upset before nationwide audience.

The Sooners, considered a disappointment by their backers, still have a chance to finish third in the Big Eight, but to do so they must get by Nebraska Thursday and Oklahoma State Dec. 4.

Losses in both games would drop them into the second division behind third-place Colorado and fourth-place Iowa State.

All Big Eight schools closed out their seasons Saturday except Nebraska, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State.

Kansas State clinched the cellar spot in the league with its 31-7 loss to Oklahoma State, its nearest challenger for the spot, completing an 0-10 season.

Oklahoma State, with a 1-5 league record, can still tie Kansas for sixth place if the Cowboys can defeat Oklahoma Dec. 4.

Colorado finished with a 6-2-2 season on a 19-6 win over the Air Force and Iowa State fell to New Mexico, 10-9, for a 5-4-1 season.

—CYCLONES TALLER—

2 Sophs Crack Veteran Lineup

(First of a Series)
By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

With veterans returning at every position, Iowa State basketball coach Glen Anderson still has found room in the starting lineup for two sophomores, something that could spell trouble for Cyclone foes.

Sophomores 6-9 Raul Duarte and 6-7 Don Smith have cracked the Cyclone lineup at the forward spots, giving Iowa State more height than a year ago and hopefully better rebounding.

With a top shooting crew last year, the Cyclones still finished only fifth in the Big Eight mainly because of a lack of rebounding and defense. Iowa State was last in the league in rebounding and seventh in points allowed.

"Improvement in defense will be necessary if our team is to improve," Anderson says, pointing to his sophomores. "If our sophomores improve to go with our veterans, we should be better than a year ago."

On the basis of their 70-51 win over the Iowa State frosh Saturday night, defense would appear to be improved, but the shooting may have been down from a year ago.

Iowa State has the second and third leading conference scorers returning in guards Al Koch and Bob Ziegler. Koch's 17.8 and Ziegler's 16.0 averages ranked only behind Kansas' Walt Wesley with 23.5 in scoring a year ago.

Another returnee, 6-5 Dave Fleming, is the starting center for Anderson's quintet.

Starters Smith and Duarte helped the Iowa State frosh complete an unbeaten season last winter and another performer off that club, John McGonigle, a 6-2 guard, is expected to see early action

Anderson figures inexperience among these three key performers as his top weakness although in Smith and Duarte, he has more height than in recent years.

The Cyclone coach sees Kansas as the conference favorite, noting, "Kansas has the best material returning and has to be the early favorite, but I feel that several teams have a chance to become the champion."

Iowa State's Varsity DumpsFreshmen,70-51

—FLOCK OF QUICK ACCEPTANCES FILLS OUT POST-SEASON ROSTERS—

Only One Question Mark Left In Major Bowls

By Associated Press

Michigan State, secure in its No. 1 ranking after a rousing 12-3 triumph over rugged Notre Dame, appears headed for a rematch in the Rose Bowl game with a tiny question mark about its opponent the only one remaining to complete the major bowl picture.

With a flock of quick acceptances after Saturday's games, this is the way the top post-season college football bowls shape up:

ROSE BOWL — Michigan State, 10-0, vs. UCLA, 7-1-1.

COTTON BOWL — Arkansas, 10-0, vs. Louisiana State, 7-3.

SUGAR BOWL — Missouri, 7-2-1, vs. Florida, 6-3.

GATOR BOWL — Georgia Tech, 6-2-1, vs. Texas Tech, 8-2.

The only question is about Michigan State's Rose Bowl opponent, and that's a small one.

Seventh-ranked UCLA, which lost its season opener to the Spartans 13-3, all but clinched the host spot in the Rose Bowl with Saturday's 20-16 upset of Southern California, ranked sixth in the nation and now 6-2-1.

The only other Rose Bowl contender, Washington State, lost to Washington 27-9, making it appear that a meeting of the conference selection committee would be only a formality in the naming of UCLA.

Michigan State had clinched its Rose Bowl berth a week before, and protected its No. 1 rating with the strong showing against Notre Dame, the nation's fourth-ranked team going into the defensive struggle at South Bend.

Arkansas closed out its second straight perfect season with a 42-24 romp over Texas Tech, the No. 9 team. That put Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl. Tech, as it had announced earlier, moved into the Gator Bowl against idle Georgia Tech.

Louisiana State crushed Tulane 62-0 and took the Cotton Bowl berth opposite Arkansas. Alabama, ranked fifth had an off day and took the time to accept an expected bid to the Orange Bowl, opposing Nebraska. The Cornhuskers, also idle, are ranked third.

Missouri, the No. 8 team, completed its season with a 44-20 decision over Kansas and found its Sugar Bowl opponent in 10th ranked Florida.

The Gators were 16-13 upset victims at the hands of Miami, Fla., but had a mild celebration in order when they accepted a previously-proffered invitation to the Sugar Bowl.

Tennessee, 5-1-2, which has yet to play UCLA Dec. 4, whipped old foe Kentucky 19-3 and took a spot in the Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston. Their opponent is yet to be determined, but could be Tulsa, 13-3 winner over Wichita.

Dartmouth stunned Princeton 28-14 in the clash of unbeatens for the Ivy League title. It was Princeton's first loss after 17 straight.

Michigan State's magnificent defensive unit was the key in its comeback victory over Notre Dame. The Fighting Irish got off to a quick 3-0 first quarter lead, but the Spartan defensive unit shut them out the rest of the way, limiting their impressive corps of running backs to a minus 12 yards rushing.

"Our defensive team played the most magnificent game any college team ever played," Spartan Coach Duffy Daugherty said.

Quarterback Jon Brittenum was the key man in Arkansas' drive to its 22nd straight victory. He kept the Razorbacks moving relentlessly against Tech, guiding them on drives of 68, 72, 53, 73 and 69 yards.

In some of the other traditional games Harvard blanked Yale 13-0, Purdue edged Indiana 26-21, Illinois beat Northwestern 20-6, Ohio State edged Michigan 9-7, Minnesota crushed Wisconsin 42-7, Duke took North Carolina 42-7, Duke took North lina 34-7, Pittsburgh nipped Penn State 30-27 and South Carolina got by Clemson 17-16.

Clay-Patterson Fight On Omaha Television

Tonight's Cassius Clay-Floyd Patterson heavyweight championship fight will be shown on closed circuit television in Omaha's Civic Auditorium.

A 10-round preliminary fight will begin at 9 p.m. with the Clay-Patterson fight set for 9:30 or at the conclusion of the prelim bout.

Patterson has had five fights since the Liston debacle. He stopped Sante Amonti in eight, outpointed Eddie Machin in 12, knocked out Charley Powell in six, won over George Chuvalo in 12 gruelling rounds and stopped Tod Herring in three.

Namath Hurls Jets To Win

New York (AP)—Rookie quarterback Joe Namath continued his rapid development Sunday, passing for four touchdowns in a game for the first time in his pro career as the New York Jets crushed Houston 51-14 for their fourth consecutive victory.

The triumph lifted the Jets into second place in the Eastern Division of the American Football League with a 4-5-1 record while Houston dropped into third with a 4-6 mark.

The Jets' four straight victories also equals the longest winning streak in the AFL this season.

Namath, starting at quarterback for the third straight game, completed 17 passes in 26 attempts for 217 yards. The Jets gained 519 yards over-all. Namath hit Don Maynard with four and 34-yard touchdown tosses, connected with George Sauer on a play covering 20 yards and hit Curly Johnson with a six-yard flip as the Jets grabbed a 34-0 lead.

Johnson, the Jets' punting specialist, was playing tight end in place of Dee Mackey, who suffered a broken left collarbone during the second period.

Namath left the game early in the fourth quarter after hitting Maynard with the 34-yarder, and Mike Taliaferro, who was the starting quarterback when the season began, played the rest of the way.

Namath, who went into the game with eight touchdown passes, never before had passed for more than two touchdowns in one pro game.

He had one pass intercepted, breaking a string of 77 attempts without a steal.

While Namath was riddling the leaky Houston Secondary, Bill Mathis broke through the Oiler line for 126 yards on 14 carries. Mathis raced 79 yards to the six on the second play of the game, setting up Namath's first touchdown pass to Maynard.

Mathis' run from scrimmage was the longest in club history. Jim Turner, meanwhile, tied an AFL field goal record when he connected for his second of the game in the second period, giving him seven in a row.

The Jets' defense again proved tough to rush against. The Oilers were able to gain only eight yards on the ground in the first half before alternating quarterbacks George Blanda and Don Trull took to the air in an attempt to get them back in the game.

—'FIVE GREEN KNIGHTS OF FRIGHT'—

Spartan Defense One Of Greatest

South Bend, Ind. (AP)—To the roll call for college football's immortal defensive units — such as Notre Dame's Seven Mules of the 1920s and Fordhams Seven Blocks of Granite a decade later - add Michigan State's Five Green Knights of Fright.

It's a line-up that will be remembered - by Notre Dame and other teams - for years to come.

This monstrous, mobile forward wall proved the decisive factor Saturday in the Spartans 12-3 victory over the Fighting Irish in a game that may decide the national championship.

The five-man line, averaging 244 pounds, stopped Notre Dames powerful running attack and limited the Irish to a minus 12 yards on the ground.

It stopped Notre Dame's two most dangerous ball-carriers cold - Bill Wolski, minus-eight yards, and Nick Eddy, minus-three. It limited the country's second strongest offensive team on the ground —Nebraska is No. 1—to three first downs.

"I can't recall statistics like this," Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian said afterward. "They played a fantastic defensive game."

"The defenses dominated." said Michigan State coach Duffy Daugherty. "I've never seen a performance like this one by our team today."

After Notre Dame got off to a 3-0 lead in the opening minutes on a 32-yard field goal by Ken Ivan, the Spartans smashed back for winning touchdowns in the third and fourth periods.

Daugherty disclosed later that at intermission the defensive players promised the offensive men that if the offense would score, the defense would hold the Irish scoreless the rest of the way.

KELLY PETERSEN . . . Solves Devaney's Problem.

NU Center Petersen 'Arrives'

Kelly Petersen has finally "arrived" as a Nebraska football star, fulfilling a hopeful prediction made last spring by offensive line coach Carl Selmer.

One of the big gaps in Nebraska's offensive line was at center—a spot filled so well by All Big-Eight Lyle Sittler, now a coach at Lawrence, Kan., High School.

During spring practice, Selmer opined: "I think Kelly can do the job, but he's got to improve and use his ability."

Petersen didn't get the No. 1 job in spring practice, yielding to Harry Tuthill most of the way. But Tuthill turned up ineligible and Petersen got his chance.

"Statistically, we rank as a sound team," Selmer grins. "And Kelly has been playing center for us all the way. It's a cinch he's been doing a fine job."

Petersen, a 223-pounder from Cozad, came to Nebraska as a fullback.

"We didn't feel he had the speed or quickness for fullback," Selmer said. "Now, however, he has progressed a great deal, picked up a real understanding of the game and — most important — he has a position."

Selmer praises Petersen's blocking this fall as the Huskers have defeated nine straight opponents and lead the nation in rushing offense.

"The center is a vital man," Selmer said. "He's always got to worry about 'Mike' (slang for the defensive middle guard.) 'Mike' is always trying to run around his head, and Kelly's always got a difficult blocking assignment."

"You bet," Selmer said. "You can say Kelly has done a darn good job for us."

Huskers Again Near Perfect Mark

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney who has been responsible for pushing the 1941 Husker Rose Bowl team into the background can do the same thing to Jumbo Stiehm's Stiehm - Rollers Thursday at Memorial Stadium.

Devaney shoved the Rose Bowlers from the limelight in which they bathed for two decades with his three consecutive bowl appearances and a fourth coming up.

All that Jumbo Stiehm has over Devaney is that he coached the last unbeaten Nebraska team in 1915. The Huskers by whipping Oklahoma Thursday can give modern football followers relief from old-timers' talk of those days.

Devaney's gridders came within one game of a perfect season last year when Oklahoma stopped those ideas in the final contest at Norman.

For the second year in a row then, Nebraska goes into the Oklahoma contest with a 9-0 record and also for the second year in a row they have a signed bowl contract already in hand.

A year ago, the Huskers had accepted a Cotton Bowl berth after setting up a 9-0 record. This year, the Orange Bowl got the Huskers and NU fans who will be leaving their turkey dinners until later Thursday hope they don't see a repeat of last year's finale.

The Huskers will be strong favorites and if going for an unbeaten season isn't enough incentive for the Scarlet-clad gridders, then appearing before a national television audience should be.

And in all the hoopla of unbeaten seasons and bowl talk, one significant fact still remains — the Huskers still are not the sole Big Eight champions and they won't be if they don't win Thursday.

Nebraska is assured of at least a tie, but that is all they are assured of with Missourians likely being among the more interested television viewers.

Missouri, which finished its season Saturday with a 44-20 lashing of Kansas, can tie the Huskers for the league title if NU slips against the Sooners. The Tigers have already etched their 6-1 mark in the conference logs and Nebraska stands 6-0 in league play.

Oklahoma also has something to shoot for aside from the thoughts of springing a major upset before nationwide audience.

The Sooners, considered a disappointment by their backers, still have a chance to finish third in the Big Eight, but to do so they must get by Nebraska Thursday and Oklahoma State Dec. 4.

Losses in both games would drop them into the second division behind third-place Colorado and fourth-place Iowa State.

All Big Eight schools closed out their seasons Saturday except Nebraska, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State.

Kansas State clinched the cellar spot in the league with its 31-7 loss to Oklahoma State, its nearest challenger for the spot, completing an 0-10 season.

Oklahoma State, with a 1-5 league record, can still tie Kansas for sixth place if the Cowboys can defeat Oklahoma Dec. 4.

Colorado finished with a 6-2-2 season on a 19-6 win over the Air Force and Iowa State fell to New Mexico, 10-9, for a 5-4-1 season.

2 Sophs Crack Veteran Lineup

(First of a Series)
By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

With veterans returning at every position, Iowa State basketball coach Glen Anderson still has found room in the starting lineup for two sophomores, something that could spell trouble for Cyclone foes.

Sophomores 6-9 Raul Duarte and 6-7 Don Smith have cracked the Cyclone lineup at the forward spots, giving Iowa State more height than a year ago and hopefully better rebounding.

With a top shooting crew last year, the Cyclones still finished only fifth in the Big Eight mainly because of a lack of rebounding and defense. Iowa State was last in the league in rebounding and seventh in points allowed.

"Improvement in defense will be necessary if our team is to improve," Anderson says, pointing to his sophomores. "If our sophomores improve to go with our veterans, we should be better than a year ago."

On the basis of their 70-51 win over the Iowa State frosh Saturday night, defense would appear to be improved, but the shooting may have been down from a year ago.

Iowa State has the second and third leading conference scorers returning in guards Al Koch and Bob Ziegler. Koch's 17.8 and Ziegler's 16.0 averages ranked only behind Kansas' Walt Wesley with 23.5 in scoring a year ago.

Another returnee, 6-5 Dave Fleming, is the starting center for Anderson's quintet.

Starters Smith and Duarte helped the Iowa State frosh complete an unbeaten season last winter and another performer off that club, John McGonigle, a 6-2 guard, is expected to see early action

Anderson figures inexperience among these three key performers as his top weakness although in Smith and Duarte, he has more height than in recent years.

The Cyclone coach sees Kansas as the conference favorite, noting, "Kansas has the best material returning and has to be the early favorite, but I feel that several teams have a chance to become the champion."

Iowa State's Varsity DumpsFreshmen,70-51

—FLOCK OF QUICK ACCEPTANCES FILLS OUT POST-SEASON ROSTERS—

Only One Question Mark Left In Major Bowls

By Associated Press

Michigan State, secure in its No. 1 ranking after a rousing 12-3 triumph over rugged Notre Dame, appears headed for a rematch in the Rose Bowl game with a tiny question mark about its opponent the only one remaining to complete the major bowl picture.

With a flock of quick acceptances after Saturday's games, this is the way the top post-season college football bowls shape up:

ROSE BOWL — Michigan State, 10-0, vs. UCLA, 7-1-1.

COTTON BOWL - Arkansas, 10-0, vs. Louisiana State, 7-3

SUGAR BOWL — Missouri, 7-2-1, vs. Florida, 6-3.

GATOR BOWL — Georgia Tech, 6-2-1, vs. Texas Tech, 8-2.

Seventh-ranked UCLA, which lost its season opener to the Spartans 13-3, all but clinched the host spot in the Rose Bowl with Saturday's 20-16 upset of Southern California, ranked sixth in the nation and now 6-2-1

The only other Rose Bowl contender, Washington State, lost to Washington 27-9, making it appear that a meeting of the conference selection committee would be only a formality in the naming of UCLA.

Michigan State had clinched its Rose Bowl berth a week before, and protected its No. 1 rating with the strong showing against Notre Dame, the nation's fourth-ranked team going into the defensive struggle at South Bend.

Arkansas closed out its second straight perfect season with a 42-24 romp over Texas Tech, the No. 9 team. That put Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl. Tech, as it had announced earlier, moved into the Gator Bowl against idle Georgia Tech.

Louisiana State crushed Tulane 62-0 and took the Cotton Bowl berth opposite Arkansas. Alabama, ranked fifth had an off day and took the time to accept an expected bid to the Orange Bowl, opposing Nebraska. The Cornhuskers, also idle, are ranked third.

Missouri, the No. 8 team, completed its season with a 44-20 decision over Kansas and found its Sugar Bowl opponent in 10th ranked Florida.

The Gators were 16-13 upset victims at the hands of Miami, Fla., but had a mild celebration in order when they accepted a previously-proffered invitation to the Sugar Bowl

Tennessee, 5-1-2, which has yet to play UCLA Dec 4, whipped old foe Kentucky 19-3 and took a spot in the Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston. Their opponent is yet to be determined, but could be Tulsa, 13-3 winner over Wichita.

Dartmouth stunned Princeton 28-14 in the clash of unbeatens for the Ivy League title. It was Princeton's first loss after 17 straight.

Michigan State's magnificent defensive unit was the key in its comeback victory over Notre Dame. The Fighting Irish got off to a quick 3-0 first quarter lead, but the Spartan defensive unit shut them out the rest of the way, limiting their impressive corps of running backs to a minus 12 yards rushing

"Our defensive team played the most magnificent game any college team ever played," Spartan Coach Duffy Daugherty said.

Quarterback Jon Brittenum was the key man in Arkansas' drive to its 22nd straight victory. He kept the Razorbacks moving relentlessly against Tech, guiding them on drives of 68, 72, 53, 73 and 69 yards.

In some of the other traditional games Harvard blanked Yale 13-0, Purdue edged Indiana 26-21, Illinois beat Northwestern 20-6, Ohio State edged Michigan 9-7, Minnesota crushed Wisconsin 42-7, Duke took North Carolina 42-7, Duke took North lina 34-7, Pittsburgh nipped Penn State 30-27 and South Carolina got by Clemson 17-16.

Orr's Comeback Spells Defeat For Philadelphia

. . . COLTS CAPTURE EIGHTH STRAIGHT, 34-24

Blatimore, Md. (AP)—Jimmy Orr returned dramatically from the hospital in the last quarter, ran directly into action and caught a touchdown pass Sunday that assured the Baltimore Colts of their eighth straight National Football League victory, a 34-24 decision over the Philadelphia Eagles.

The spectacular 22-yard pass, the second thrown by John Unitas, came with the Colts holding a nervous 27-24 lead with seven minutes to play.

Their ninth victory in 10 games kept the Colts on top of the Western Conference, a game ahead of the Green Bay Packers who smothered Minnesota 38-13.

Raymond Poag appeared to have caught his second touchdown pass from quarterback Norman Snead in the end zone, but Boyd wrestled it from him.

The Colts were on their own 30 when Orr trotted into Memorial Stadium, and a roar went up from the crowd of 60,238. It became deafening when the slightly built flanker wheeled directly onto the field.

Giants' Defense Stops St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo. (AP)—Cornerback Dick Lynch ran with a fumble for one touchdown and set up another with an interception as the New York Giants' defense carried them to 28-15 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a National Football League game Sunday.

The victory boosted the Giants into a second place tie with the Cardinals in the Eastern Conference, each with 5-5 records.

With the Cardinals leading 5-0 late in the first half, Lynch got the Giants moving by intercepting a pass at the St. Louis 38. The pass was thrown by Buddy Humphrey, subbing for the injured Charley Johnson.

Lynch returned to the 15 and after Tucker Frederickson rushed for eight yards, Earl Morrall threw five yards to Homer Jones in the end zone for a 7-5 halftime spread.

The Giant defense continued to smother the Cardinals and was responsible for two last half touchdowns that broke open the game.

. . . COLTS CAPTURE EIGHTH STRAIGHT, 34-24

Blatimore, Md. (AP)—Jimmy Orr returned dramatically from the hospital in the last quarter, ran directly into action and caught a touchdown pass Sunday that assured the Baltimore Colts of their eighth straight National Football League victory, a 34-24 decision over the Philadelphia Eagles.

The spectacular 22-yard pass, the second thrown by John Unitas, came with the Colts holding a nervous 27-24 lead with seven minutes to play.

Their ninth victory in 10 games kept the Colts on top of the Western Conference, a game ahead of the Green Bay Packers who smothered Minnesota 38-13.

Raymond Poag appeared to have caught his second touchdown pass from quarterback Norman Snead in the end zone, but Boyd wrestled it from him.

The Colts were on their own 30 when Orr trotted into Memorial Stadium, and a roar went up from the crowd of 60,238. It became deafening when the slightly built flanker wheeled directly onto the field.

—NY TIES FOR 2ND PLACE—

Giants' Defense Stops St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo. (AP)—Cornerback Dick Lynch ran with a fumble for one touchdown and set up another with an interception as the New York Giants' defense carried them to 28-15 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a National Football League game Sunday.

The victory boosted the Giants into a second place tie with the Cardinals in the Eastern Conference, each with 5-5 records.

With the Cardinals leading 5-0 late in the first half, Lynch got the Giants moving by intercepting a pass at the St. Louis 38. The pass was thrown by Buddy Humphrey, subbing for the injured Charley Johnson.

Lynch returned to the 15 and after Tucker Frederickson rushed for eight yards, Earl Morrall threw five yards to Homer Jones in the end zone for a 7-5 halftime spread.

The Giant defense continued to smother the Cardinals and was responsible for two last half touchdowns that broke open the game.

British Ban Ads In Bid To Prevent Power Cuts

London (AP) — The British government Sunday ordered the state-run electricity, gas and coal industries to ban all advertising in an effort to prevent a repetition of last week's power cuts.

High-powered advertising campaigns by the fuel industries urging Britons to install domestic central heating systems and other appliances have been too successful.

Hardest hit by the government move is the highly profitable gas industry, which is currently spending four million pounds ($11.2 million) on advertising. The electricity and coal industries are spending two million pounds ($5.6 million) each.

The privately owned oil companies are not affected, but are meeting Monday to consider a government appeal to drop their own advertising, "in the national interest." This is to prevent them cashing in while the other industries are at a disadvantage.

Cold Spell

A sudden cold spell last week caused electricity and gas cuts in scattered areas throughout Britain.

The blackout. followed the sensational power cut which hit New York City and the U.S. northeast, and which some Britons smugly said couldn't happen here.

Most of Britain's power cuts in the last few years have been due to inadequate generating capacity. Demand has consistently outpaced the building of new plants. And advertising in the press and on television helped keep demand leaping ahead.

Similar problems are faced in colder countries than Britain, but these nations still have current to spare.

Excess Capacity

In a survey carried out in Britain, Austria, Holland, France, West Germany, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States, the London Suday Times said it found only Britain and Austria had suffered power cuts due to too little generating capacity in recent years.

The newspaper pointed out as an example that the excess generating capacity over anticipated peak demand for this winter was 46% in France against 8% in Britain.

Meanwhile, the weather turned steadily colder over Britain Sunday. Snowfalls of up to 18 inches blocked roads in Scotland, where the winter sports season opened.

France To Launch First Satellite Try

Paris (UPI)—France will launch its first space satellite Monday from the Hammaguir Space Center in the Sahara if weather conditions permit, informed sources said Sunday.

President Charles de Gaulle will be the first man informed about the success—or failure—of the launching, designed to get France a seat in the exclusive space power club alongside the United States and Russia, the sources said.

In addition to boosting France's prestige abroad, a successful space shot would enhance De Gaulle's standing at home less than three weeks before the Dec. 5 presidential elections in which he will seek re-election.

Three Stage Rocket

The project calls for the orbiting of an 83.7 pound A-1 capsule by the three stage rocket Diamond. The orbit is to range from a low point of 340 miles, to a high of 1770 miles.

Such technicians were reported to believe the shot may not succeed. They claim they have been under pressure from high quarters to achieve the launching before Dec. 5 without proper time for intricate preliminary tests.

There were unconfirmed reports that a second shot would follow within a few days if the first failed.

The rockets and satellites were flown to Hammaguir, near Colomb Bechar, in Algeria's south western Sahara region, Nov. 5 by a fleet of cargo planes from the space research center at Saint-Medard-en-Jalles, near Bordeaux, in southwest France.

Military Basis

The space shots will be carried out by the military because the Diamond is to be the basis for military nuclear rockets which will start replacing the Mirage-IV atomic bombers within 2-½ years.

The A-1 is a simple capsule whose main purpose is to test launching and tracking techniques. The tracking system includes a mobile station near Beirut, Lebanon, plus radar near Paris, in Upper Volta, South Africa, the ex-French Congo and at Hammaguir itself.

If all goes well the 18-ton Diamond rocket would attempt to place in orbit within two months the D-1, a 35-pound satellite packed with sophisticated instruments.

In addition, the FR-1 French satellit, a more complex device, is to be carried aloft by a Scout rocket from the United States Air Force Base at Vandenberg, Calif.

Guerrillas Shoot 20 Venezuelans

Maracaibo, Venezuela (AP) — Twenty peasants have been shot to death by guerrillas in the mountainous districts of Moron and Jimenez in the northern inland state of Lara, the secretary-general of the Farmers Federation, Rafael Bastidas, reported.

Bastidas also said six farmers had been kidnapped by an armed band. He did not say when the incidents occurred but told reporters more than 40,000 farmers in the states of Lara and Portuguesa had offered to join forces with the government to fight the guerrillas.

Tired Princess Sleeps, Skips Connecticut Trip

New Canaan, Conn. (AP)—An exhausting schedule finally caught up with Britain's Princess Margaret Sunday. She was forced to forego a trip to this quiet Connecticut community in order to sleep.

She had attended church services during the morning with her husband, the earl of Snowdon, but both appeared very tired. They had been up until the early hours of the morning at a party and both had been keeping to a breakneck schedule during their 20-day tour of the United States.

Following church services, Princess Margaret returned to the Manhasset, N.Y., estate of their host, newspaper publisher John Hay Whitney, and went to sleep. Lord Snowdon made the trip to Connecticut alone.

A spokesman for the British Information Services said the Princess needed rest "in view of her heavy schedule of engagements tomorrow."

Those engagements include a trip through Manhattan Fifth Avenue stores, an opening of a bazaar, an art gallery tour, luncheon with Wall Street businessmen and a tour of Lincoln Center, part of which was designed by architect Philip Johnson, the man the royal couple had been scheduled to see here Sunday.

Lord Snowdon is an old friend of Johnson's and said he considers the architect "one of the world's most outstanding" men in the field.

The princess' failure to accompany her husband and the rest of the royal party here was a disappointment to some of the 1,500 persons bundled against a chilly November wind and lining narrow Connecticut roads to the Johnson home.

However, the motorcade drove past so quickly that some of the spectators failed to notice the princess' absence and others mistook lady in waiting Cavendish for Margaret.

JFK Memorial Hike

Vienna (AP)—A group of 100 Austrian army men staged a 50-mile John F. Kennedy memorial march this weekend. The marchers left their Vienna barracks and arrived in the Danube Valley town of Krems 19½ hours later.

People Haven't Forgotten—They Still Come By Thousands To JFK's Grave

Washington (AP)—Once again the dry, brown oak leaves rustle across the slopes of Arlington National Cemetery as they did two years ago.

The lonely sound of taps for a fallen soldier drifts through the trees.

The people have not forgotten the man for whom Taps sounded two years ago.

They still come by the hundreds and often thousands each day to stand for a few moments at the grave of John F. Kennedy, who died two years ago Monday.

An estimated 11,600,000 persons have walked across the slope to the low white picket fence surrounding the grave and the eternal flame since the burial there of the late president on Nov. 25, 1963.

More Than Usual

Thousands walked up the path Sunday on a cold, gray day — many more than the usual Sunday visitors this time of year when tourists are fewer than in the spring and summer.

As far as could be learned no member of the Kennedy family visited the grave Sunday but some are expected Monday.

Just below the site, construction has begun on the permanent memorial with its oval walkway, the marble base for the eternal flame and the presidential seal on the wall behind the grave. It's expected to be finished next fall.

Even the construction work is muted, and it will be suspended Monday in respect for the anniversary.

Kennedy's family has announced no plans for special visits — they often drop by there quietly to kneel and pray. As far as is known publicly, the last time Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, the young widow, visited the grave was May 29, 1964, when she took her two small children there on the anniversary of Kennedy's 47th birthday.

Spray of Wildflowers

Last year, on the anniversary of his death, Mrs. Kennedy sent a small spray of wildflowers to the grave and stayed in seclusion with her children on Long Island, N.Y.

Dave Powers, a former White House aide and personal friend of Kennedy; Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln, longtime personal secretary of Kennedy; and possibly a group of Army Special Forces from Ft. Bragg, N.C., plan visits Monday. Kennedy took particular interest in the Special Forces.

There always are wreaths and flowers inside the picket fence. Britain's Princess Margaret brought white chrysanthemums during her stay in Washington this past week.

Little Dickie Bach, 6, foster child for the National Association for Retarded Children, climbed the long walkway Friday behind a wreath of white carnations for the grave.

His mother, Mrs. Alvin Bach of Minneapolis, brushed tears from her eyes and said to a reporter, "President Kennedy did so much for the mentally retarded — he just opened up everything."

Wiped His Eyes

Takeru Toki, Kobe, Japan, in this country on business, put his camera down, took off his glasses and wiped his eyes as he stood by the grave.

"I've been wanting to come here for two years," he said. "I've read his inauguration address 45 times."

Mrs. Derwood Eike of Rochester, N.Y., inched up the walkway with an aluminum frame walker because of a stroke she had suffered.

"We have two sons buried here in Arlington," she said. "They were pilots in World War II. We try to visit our sons once a year, and we always come by President Kennedy's grave."

A little boy looking at the eternal flame asked his mother, "Why do they have a fire?"

"That's in memory of him —he died and was buried there," she said.

"Why did he die?" the little boy asked.

THIEVES TAKE SILVER CROSS

Foligno, Italy (AP) — Police reported that thieves have stolen a jewel-encrusted silver cross, said to be worth $500,000, from a church.

The 14th Century cross, usually carried by a priest in processions, was about three feet high.

Police said thieves broke into the Roman Catholic Church of St. Mary at Spello, a nearby village and had taken the cross and several other objects, including two silver chalices. The thieves damaged a valuable carved wooden door of the 16th Century in breaking in.

Soviet Christmas Toys

Berlin (AP) — Toy models of Soviet tanks and planes are being sold in East Berlin's big, state-operated "House of the Child" specialty store. Other Christmas toys offered in Communist East German stores include rocket ships, robots and a plastic moon globe the size of a basketball.

THE CHARCOAL WE USE at Jack Daniel's to gentle our whiskey is burned in the open air. This is the only way we know of making it.

Some folks have said charcoal can't be made in the open air. We're not chemists and neither was Jack Daniel. All we know is that we've been making it this way since the day Mr. Jack started his distillery a century ago. And there's no secret about it. If there's any secret at all it's in what it does to our Tennessee sippin' whiskey. A sip, we believe, will tell you what we mean.

THE CHARCOAL WE USE at Jack Daniel's to gentle our whiskey is burned in the open air. This is the only way we know of making it.

Some folks have said charcoal can't be made in the open air. We're not chemists and neither was Jack Daniel. All we know is that we've been making it this way since the day Mr. Jack started his distillery a century ago. And there's no secret about it. If there's any secret at all it's in what it does to our Tennessee sippin' whiskey. A sip, we believe, will tell you what we mean.

Mexican Americans Cheer LBJ, Gonzalez At Big Fiesta

San Antonio, Tex. (AP) — Thousands of Mexican Americans who have supported him at the ballot box throughout his political career whopped it up Sunday for President Johnson.

Chief of Police George Bichsel estimated at 30,000 the crowd which turned out for a colorful fiesta to greet Johnson in the west side Latin Area of San Antonio.

There were cheers, too, for two other heroes of the Latin Americans, Cantinflas, the famed Mexican comedian, and Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., as well as for Mrs. Johnson.

The big turnout celebrated Gonzalez's victory in a special election four years ago. Johnson, then vice president, and Cantinflas were among those who came here to campaign for Gonzales.

Search For Peace

In his speech, Johnson said, "In the search for peace, we search also for a real and lasting peace. "We want to build a world where reason will replace rockets and reason will replace terror."

These goals are possible, Johnson said, "Because we believe in them, and believing in them we can do them."

During his talk, Johnson disclosed that he will attend interfaith memorial services in Fredericksburg, Tex. He said a Catholic priest, protestant minister and Jewish rabbi will take part.

Fredericksburg is near the Johnson ranch where the President is recuperating from his Oct. 8 gall bladder-kidney stone surgery. He interrupted his stay Sunday to fly to San Antonio to pay tribute to Gonzalez and his Mexican-American supporter.

Hot Weather

Hot, humid weather kept the first-aid stations busy fanning heat sufferers and applying smelling salts. By noon an estimated 5,000 persons had assembled in the Las Palmas shopping center to await Johnson who arrived about 3:30.

A variety of bands, one aptly named "The Happy Jazz Band," provided entertainment for the early arrivals.

Signs with the pictures of Johnson and Gonzalez and saying "Amigos Siempre" (friends forever) were prominently displayed.

Paying tribute to Americans of Mexican descent, Johnson said:

"You are part of my people. You have never deserted me through my long career in public life — and I hope it can be said that I have never deserted you."

Victory Celebration

The occasion was a celebration of the 1961 victory of Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., in a special election.

Johnson, then vice president, came here to campaign for Gonzalez. So did the famed Mexican comedian Cantinflas.

In advance of the celebration here, Johnson and Cantinflas got together Sunday night at the LBJ ranch near Johnson City where the comedian was an overnight guest. He flew here with the President by helicopter.

In his speech here, Johnson described Cantinflas as "one of the greatest and best beloved comedians of all time," adding:

"We know him as a man whose heart goes out to his fellow man. We know him as a man of human dignity. And we know him as a man who has done more to further good relations between the United States and Mexico than many professional statesmen.

Prosper With Rest

Johnson said he and Cantinflas came to San Antonio four years ago to campaign for Gonzalez because "we wanted you — like people of this district — to prosper with the rest of the nation. We wanted better jobs and better homes for you and your families. We wanted better education for your children . . .

"Henry Gonzalez is a man of the people who is devoting his life to the cause of the people. I can pay him no higher tribute."

After the presidential helicopter landed in a shopping center parking lot, Mrs. Gonzalez presented Mrs. Johnson with a bouquet of red roses as the first lady came down the steps, dressed in a red suit and wearing a red hat.

Johnson, accompanied by Cantinflas and Mrs. Johnson shook hands with 17 local officials and celebrities, the later included Army Master Sergt. Cleo Rodriguez World War Medal of Honor winner, who served in the National Youth Administration when Johnson was state director of that organization.

On the platform were the President's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman Baines and an aunt, Mrs. Josephine Saunders.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., and Gonzalez spoke briefly.

Third Kidnaping Suspect Pledges To Return After FBI Arrests Pair

Tacoma, Wash. (AP) — James Edward Evans, 31, the third suspect in the kidnapping of Charles Hyde III, has said that he is on the way back to Tacoma to turn himself in, Pierce County Sheriff Jack Berry said Sunday night.

Berry disclosed that Evans telephoned sheriff's detective Capt. Ernest Keck Saturday night. He said that he presumed the call came from California. Evans said he has a brother at Hayward, Calif.

"Evans said he understood he was wanted and that he was on his way back to Tacoma," Keck said. "I have absolutely no doubt that the man calling was Evans. He told me details about his family and the kidnapping that could not have been known by anyone else.

Show Up

"I have every confidence he will show up if he can. He told me he would notify me as soon as he arrived here."

Keck said Evans, a mechanic, has a wife and several small children in Tacoma.

The Hyde boy, 13, was abducted last Wednesday and held for nine hours before being released unharmed. His father, a grocery firm executive, paid $45,000 ransom.

Tilford G. Baker, 34, a Tacoma carpenter, turned himself in to the sheriff's office early Saturday and implicated Evans and Dean Allen Bromley, 20, also of Tacoma. Baker led officers to a bowling alley, where $34,360 was found in a bag in a locker.

Bromley, an unemployed longshoreman, was arrested Saturday night at McCrory, Ark. The FBI said $5,500 was recovered wrom him.

Baker, Bromley and Evans are each charged with first-degree kidnaping.

Berry said Baker told him he first discussed the kidnaping with the two other men in a coffee shop Nov. 8.

Bromley was arrested in a tavern at McCrory late Saturday night, then driven here for arraignment before U.S. Commissioner John E. Coates early Sunday.

Coates set Bromley's bail at $100,000. Herbert E. Hoxie, agent-in-charge of the FBI office here, said Bromley was ordered held in the Pulaski County jail here until papers charging him in Tacoma arrived, probably Monday.

Hoxey said Brumley did not talk on the trip from McCrory to Little Rock. He said Bromley's wife was nearby when the arrest was made.

Bromley nodded to procedures during his arraignment, but said nothing. When Coates told him, "You don't have to make a statement," Bromley replied, "I realize that."

Hoxie said he recovered $500 from Bromley's person and that an additional $5,000 was found in McCrory, but he would not elaborate.

He said Bromley was picked up on a tip, but again declined to elaborate.

Bromley is a native of Kingman, Kan., and married, but has no children.

Baker is married and the father of two children. He is held at Tacoma under $25,000 bail.

Accomplice

It was assumed until Saturday that there were only two men involved in the case. Officers said Baker identified one of the two men sought as his accomplice in the actual abduction, the other as involved only in planning it.

Mrs. Hyde said she is grateful that the men released Charles safe and treated him well during the nine hours he was held blindfolded.

"Charles has said all along," she related, "that he believed they were basically kind men."

Back-Up Expert Team Keeps Gemini On Target

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP)—A back-up team of 38 management and technical experts kept next month's Gemini rendezvous launches on schedule Sunday by doing the jobs for about 200 McDonnell Aircraft Corp. machinists out on strike.

But the National Aeronautics and Space Administration was making no promises how long a postponement could be avoided.

Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell are scheduled to ride the Gemini 7 spacecraft on a 14-day space journey beginning Dec. 4. Nine days later, Dec. 13, astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford are to take the Gemini 6 spacecraft into orbit and rendezvous with Gemini 7.

Day-By-Day

"We'll just have to take it day-by-day," a NASA spokesman said. The space agency is hoping the regular men can be back at least by the middle of the week when some fueling needs to be done on the spacecraft he said.

"But maybe we can make it with the men we have. I just don't know."

The 38 management and technical experts were flown by McDonnell, prime contractor for Gemini spacecrafts, from St. Louis to Cape Kennedy Saturday to keep next months's double Gemini launching on schedule.

They filled in for some 200 machinists here who reluctantly went out on strike Friday and set up a picket line at one of five gates leading to the Cape Kennedy area.

The strikers here had voted earlier in the week to accept a new McDonnell contract proposal and rejected a strike, but their parent International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) union in St. Louis approved a strike and the Cape Kennedy unit had to go along.

The back-up management and technical experts from St. Louis were solving a mechanical problem Saturday, unrelated to the strike, which had also threatened to delay the double Gemini launches.

The men spent all day testing new power-producing fuel cells in the Gemini 7 spacecraft which were installed Thursday after trouble with the original system. The new cells were activated late Saturday night, produced power all day today and will be turned off early Monday.

"The test is going well," a NASA official said. "We'll know tomorrow after they are de-activated whether they are considered satisfactory."

Brave Battalion Returns To Victory Celebration

An Khe, Viet Nam (AP)—The brave young boys who left their youth behind in the fighting of the Ia Drang Valley came home like men to the 1st Cavalry Division base camp Sunday night.

The 2nd Battalion of the 7th Regiment, which bore the brunt of the fighting and suffered the haeviest casualties in the fighting near the Cambodian border in the central highlands, rolled home in triumph through a hall of cheers in the muddy streets of the division's tent city.

The battle-weary cavalrymen waved their rifles and shouted boisterous victory oaths as their truck convoy proceeded to the little grassy parade ground, fringed with banana trees, where the division band and the entire 3rd Brigade waited to welcome them back.

Custer's Outfit

The band played "Garry Owen" which has been the 7th Regiment marching song since a dashing young colonel named George Custer commanded the outfit in the Indian wars.

Darkness had already fallen in the An Khe Valley so the rest of the ceremony had to be held by the light of jeep headlights.

It was an old French army bugle, found in a crater on the battlefield. It was a reminder that men had been fighting and dying in the highlands only a little more than a decade ago.

Sweet Music

The bule was battered and rusted, and the sergeant who played it would hever have rated a musicians union card, but to the men sweeter music never sounded through the mist-shrouded valley. He was playing their song.

Body Bags

But there would be no empty tents for the battalion. Fresh replacements arrived Saturday and have been assigned to the cots of the fallen.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Taxes, Inflation Challenge 'Sacredness' Of Principal

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

But in order to make sure that the motivation will be durable, it is important to keep in mind the human goals.

Rukeyser

High inheritance taxes, death duties, and the impact of inflation have challenged old fashioned views as to the alleged sacredness of preserving principal. The newer view is that insurance, investment, and annuities and pensions are designed to take care of specific personal and family objectives and that at times it may be prudent to invade capital.

The decision of Congress to put non-community property states on a parity taxwise with the rules of community property states, such as California, where spouses automatically share in the estate and the income of the other spouse, significantly changed the planning and the architecture of family money programs.

Under the marital split, a husband (or a wife) can by will leave to his spouse free of death duties up to half of his estate. But the bequest must be without strings, and must concede to the beneficiary the right at her death to dispose of the property as she sees fit. (This can to some degree be circumvented by putting the amount intended for the marital split into a trust fund, giving the surviving spouse full control over the fund as required by law, but providing that in the event that she fails to appoint or name heirs, then a disposition of the funds outlined in the trust agreement by the creator of the fund shall prevail.)

Misconceptions

From his examination of the estate planning of numerous readers of this column, this writer finds some widespread misconceptions. There is an illusion that the marital split provides a glorious free ride at the expense of the Internal Revenue Service. This, however, is not the case. The marital split of up to 50% of the gross adjusted estate (it can be any lower percentage under the law) does not necessarily result in any tax avoidance, but is in reality a form of tax deferment, as in the case of the Keogh Act for pensions for the self-employed.

My own study of specific cases and my talks with sophisticated trust officers indicate to families of the marital split under wills are of a different character. If the surviving spouse is passive with the bequest and keeps it intact until her death, then the Internal Revenue Service is not deprived of anything, but in fact may get a bit more revenue in eventual death duties than if there had been no marital split.

This point is extremely important. The main advantage of using the marital split is to gain time. Thus the surviving spouse has the use of inherited funds during her lifetime without any reduction for death duties. Thus the funds—substantial in the case of larger estates subject to a steeply graduated tax rate — which otherwise would have gone in taxes are available for capital gains, for tax free gifts and for living expenses.

Tax Impact

The tax impact at the death of the second spouse may be different if she used the time gained either to increase or decrease her own taxable estate at her demise. She is entitled by law to a lifetime tax free gift of $30,000 to one or a group of other persons, and in addition can give up to $3,000 a year to as many of her relatives and others as she chooses. In addition, she has wide discretion for making charitable gifts.

A last will and testament should be reviewed periodically in light of family changes, alterations in the value of the property in the estate, and changes in the tax situation. For persons of means, the services of a knowledgeable estate attorney should be reenforced by discussions with a tax accountant and a trust officer.

In as much as the testator, or will maker, at the time of drawing up the will doesn't know when it will be executed, the new trend is to state bequests in terms of percentages, instead of fixed dollar amounts. This device not only hedges against inflation but also against the risk that the will might be executed when prices are depressed.

In many states, spouses are entitled to dower rights. Where there are no children, the spouse in New York, for example, is entitled to half. In families with children, the spouse is entitled to one third. These rules prevail in intestasy, that is, where a person dies without a will. Under a will, a spouse cannot be cut below the statutory minimum, although in pre-marital agreements different arrangments can be worked out by contract.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with self-addressed, stamped envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Two Marine Drill Instructors Face Courts Martial

The two are Sgt. Ronald A. Stewart, 24, of Parkersburg, Pa., and Cpl. Jerry W. Nelson, 22, of Alva, Ky.

Staff Sgt. Clyde E. Cornelison, 29, of Coca Beach, Fla., was found innocent of mistreatment charges last week.

He and the other two drill instructors were accused of physical mistreatment by eight recruits. Charges were filed by parents of six of the recruits. All eight are from Great Falls, S.C.

Cornelison denied charges by two recruits that he hit them. He said he tapped another recruit on the head to instruct him about wearing his hat outside the barracks.

Cornelison said he touched the stomach of another recruit with his hand to check his condition. He said te recruit was overweight.

Thugs Fake Distress

Rome (AP) — Drivers curbed their cars when an auto sped through dense Roman traffic, its horn honking and the passenger waving a white handkerchief. The horn and hanky are Italian distress signals meaning someone is being rushed to a hospital, but police said this time the signals were used by two thugs who had just stolen a salesman's sample case containing $48,000 worth of jewels.

Toolmaker's Widow Given $740,000 For Death Of Fright

New York (AP) — A state supreme court justice has awarded $740,000 in damages to the widow of a toolmaker who died of a heart attack brought on by fright.

Salvatore Capossela, 53, of Whitestone, Queens, died May 7, 1958, after a car smashed through hedges of his front lawn and almost rammed into his house where he and his wife, Catherine, were sitting by a window.

Capossela went outside to talk to the driver in the car and experienced pains in his arms and chest. He returned to the house, collapsed, and 45 minutes later was dead.

Justice Nicholas M. Pette made the award to Mrs. Capossela based on estimates of what her husband would have earned had he lived retroactive to the date of his death, and on interest accumulated from the date of his death.

In making the award, Justice Pette declared, "The medical testimony conclusively establishes that the death was due to a heart attack induced by the shock and fright."

Capossela had two daughters, Rosa and Catherine, now 24 and 16 years old.

British Bakers Threatening To Spread Strike

London (AP) — British bakers union officials threatened to make a nationwide strike out of scattered regional strikes that left more than a million families without bread this weekend.

The bakers said they were continuing with plans for "guerrilla strikes" across the country if their demands for a 30% wage increase and shorter work hours are not met.

The plans call for many workers now on strike to return to their jobs while those in areas now unaffected stop working.

TEEN IDOL—VIETNAMESE STYLE

If U.S. Refused Viet Negotiations, Briton Doubts Christians' Support

London (AP) — A British clergyman said Sunday Christians should ask themselves whether they can still support the United States in Viet Nam if it is true that Washington had refused an offer to negotiate peace there.

The Rev. Paul Oestreicher, associate secretary of the British Council of Churches, said in a sermon at Westminster Abbey that if President Johnson refused to negotiate when the offer was made then "we are bound to raise our voices with those of Christians in Asia in deep concern."

"We are bound to ask our prime minister and, more especially, our foreign secretary whether they can still support this American war."

The U.S. State Department said last Monday the United States had rejected a North Vietnamese offer for talks a year ago because "all indications were that there was no serious intent on the other side."

People 'Sacrificed'

Oestreicher asked at one point in his sermon, whether the time had not come for Prime Minister Harold Wilson to go to the U.S. in the name of humanity with an appeal to stop the Viet Nam war.

"Our American friends must know that their noble aims of freedom cannot ever be fulfilled while a people is sacrificed on the altar of political idealism," he said.

"If we so appeal to America we must hope and pray that the leaders of Soviet Russia will similarly appeal to the Vietnamese.

"It is the fruit of a generation of political blindness that today there is no one who can appeal to China and hope to be heard."

Victory Hopes Receding

The telegraph said prospects for an American victory were receding. It added:

"It is inconceivable that the Americans can be defeated militarily but valid doubts now arise as to whether they can win in the accepted sense of the word."

An Observer dispatch from Washington said bitterness over the war was rising in the United States as casualties mounted and "there is no end in sight."

An Observer editorial said:

"How can the carnage be stopped? It should be all the easier for the U.S. to make a concession now that she has demonstrated, by her massive military commitment, her determination not to be driven into humiliating defeat. As a first step, America could offer to stop the bombing of North Viet Nam and ask the North Vietnamese in return to stop infiltrating into the south. Given such a partial ceasefire, it might then be possible to move on to more serious negotiations. If he fails to do this, President Johnson risks throwing away the good will of all those who have been giving him the benefit of the doubt and ending up in a position of diplomatic isolation."

Swimming In Sicily

Palermo, Sicily (AP)—An unseasonable warm spell brought hundreds of persons to the beaches outside this Sicial city. Among them were many Scandinavian and German tourists who went swimming. Warm winds from Africa over the past several days have boosted the mercury to 77 degrees.

Fumes Send 3 From Church To Hospital

Blue Springs (UPI)—Three persons were hospitalized in good condition at a Beatrice hospital Sunday after they were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes while attending church services here this morning at the Christian Church.

The three were among an estimated 30-40 persons who were in the church at the time. Several other persons were treated by a doctor.

Hospitalized were Glenn Pyle, 51, and Kenton Mann, 13, both of Blue Springs and Dee Carder of Valley Falls, Kan.

The mishap apparently was caused by a faulty exhaust on the furnace. Those most seriously affected by the fumes had attended Sunday school classes at 10 a.m.

The father of one of the youngsters, Bob Mann, said that the first indication that something was wrong came shortly after church services were started at 11 a.m. Mann said that his daughter, Janene, 7, became sick and was sent outside. A short time later others in the church became sick and Pyle at first appeared to be the only one seriously affected.

Pastor of the church is Benny Nelson of Lincoln.

EX-PRESIDENT FRACTURES HIP

Japanese Baby Dies

Otsu, Japan (AP)—A baby girl, delivered nearly two hours after her mother perished in a traffic accident, died 18 hours later. Mrs. Emiko Murayama, 19, and in her ninth month of pregnancy, was dead on arrival at Red Cross Hospital in this central Japanese city after being hit by a truck, and doctors delivered the baby by caesarean section.

Brave Battalion Returns To Victory Celebration

An Khe, Viet Nam (AP)—The brave young boys who left their youth behind in the fighting of the Ia Drang Valley came home like men to the 1st Cavalry Division base camp Sunday night.

The 2nd Battalion of the 7th Regiment, which bore the brunt of the fighting and suffered the haeviest casualties in the fighting near the Cambodian border in the central highlands, rolled home in triumph through a hall of cheers in the muddy streets of the division's tent city.

The battle-weary cavalrymen waved their rifles and shouted boisterous victory oaths as their truck convoy proceeded to the little grassy parade ground, fringed with banana trees, where the division band and the entire 3rd Brigade waited to welcome them back.

Custer's Outfit

The band played "Garry Owen" which has been the 7th Regiment marching song since a dashing young colonel named George Custer commanded the outfit in the Indian wars.

Darkness had already fallen in the An Khe Valley so the rest of the ceremony had to be held by the light of jeep headlights.

Their faces still etched with the mud and strain of battle, the men of the 2nd Battalion stood ramrod straight, their packs at their feet, throughout some speeches.

When it was over, someone shouted, "Where's that bugle?" The whole battalion took up the cry for their favorite instrument.

It was an old French army bugle, found in a crater on the battlefield. It was a reminder that men had been fighting and dying in the highlands only a little more than a decade ago.

Sweet Music

The bule was battered and rusted, and the sergeant who played it would hever have rated a musicians union card, but to the men sweeter music never sounded through the mist-shrouded valley. He was playing their song.

"File by the ammunition container and turn in your explosives," someone ordered.

Then came from a more popular decree from on high:

"Free beer for everyone on the mess sergeant."

There will be drinking and laughing and hell-raising in the 2nd Battalion all night—and some tears, too.

Body Bags

Tears for buddies left behind in the high elephant grass at Ia Drang Valley. Tears for comrades wrapped up in the rubber body bags and already on the first stage of their long journey home.

But there would be no empty tents for the battalion. Fresh replacements arrived Saturday and have been assigned to the cots of the fallen.

"Try not to wake them up," a captain said half heartedly, "They just got here and they are tired."

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Taxes, Inflation Challenge 'Sacredness' Of Principal

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

Rukeyser

But in order to make sure that the motivation will be durable, it is important to keep in mind the human goals.

High inheritance taxes, death duties, and the impact of inflation have challenged old fashioned views as to the alleged sacredness of preserving principal. The newer view is that insurance, investment, and annuities and pensions are designed to take care of specific personal and family objectives and that at times it may be prudent to invade capital.

The decision of Congress to put non-community property states on a parity taxwise with the rules of community property states, such as California, where spouses automatically share in the estate and the income of the other spouse, significantly changed the planning and the architecture of family money programs.

Under the marital split, a husband (or a wife) can by will leave to his spouse free of death duties up to half of his estate. But the bequest must be without strings, and must concede to the beneficiary the right at her death to dispose of the property as she sees fit. (This can to some degree be circumvented by putting the amount intended for the marital split into a trust fund, giving the surviving spouse full control over the fund as required by law, but providing that in the event that she fails to appoint or name heirs, then a disposition of the funds outlined in the trust agreement by the creator of the fund shall prevail.)

Misconceptions

From his examination of the estate planning of numerous readers of this column, this writer finds some widespread misconceptions. There is an illusion that the marital split provides a glorious free ride at the expense of the Internal Revenue Service. This, however, is not the case. The marital split of up to 50% of the gross adjusted estate (it can be any lower percentage under the law) does not necessarily result in any tax avoidance, but is in reality a form of tax deferment, as in the case of the Keogh Act for pensions for the self-employed.

My own study of specific cases and my talks with sophisticated trust officers indicate to families of the marital split under wills are of a different character. If the surviving spouse is passive with the bequest and keeps it intact until her death, then the Internal Revenue Service is not deprived of anything, but in fact may get a bit more revenue in eventual death duties than if there had been no marital split.

This point is extremely important. The main advantage of using the marital split is to gain time. Thus the surviving spouse has the use of inherited funds during her lifetime without any reduction for death duties. Thus the funds—substantial in the case of larger estates subject to a steeply graduated tax rate — which otherwise would have gone in taxes are available for capital gains, for tax free gifts, and for living expenses.

Tax Impact

The tax impact at the death of the second spouse may be different if she used the time gained either to increase or decrease her own taxable estate at her demise. She is entitled by law to a lifetime tax free gift of $30.000 to one or a group of other persons, and in addition can give up to $3.000 a year to as many of her relatives and others as she chooses. In addition, she has wide discretion for making charitable gifts.

A last will and testament should be reviewed periodically in light of family changes, alterations in the value of the property in the estate, and changes in the tax situation. For persons of means, the services of a knowledgeable estate attorney should be reenforced by discussions with a tax accountant and a trust officer.

In as much as the testator, or will maker, at the time of drawing up the will doesn't know when it will be executed, the new trend is to state bequests in terms of percentages, instead of fixed dollar amounts. This device not only hedges against inflation but also against the risk that the will might be executed when prices are depressed.

In many states, spouses are entitled to dower rights. Where there are no children, the spouse in New York, for example, is entitled to half. In families with children, the spouse is entitled to one third. These rules prevail in intestasy, that is, where a person dies without a will. Under a will, a spouse cannot be cut below the statutory minimum, although in pre-marital agreements different arrangments can be worked out by contract.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with self-addressed, stamped envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Thugs Fake Distress

Rome (AP) — Drivers curbed their cars when an auto sped through dense Roman traffic, its horn honking and the passenger waving a white handkerchief. The horn and hanky are Italian distress signals meaning someone is being rushed to a hospital, but police said this time the signals were used by two thugs who had just stolen a salesman's sample case containing $48,000 worth of jewels.

Two Marine Drill Instructors Face Courts Martial

The two are Sgt. Ronald A. Stewart, 24, of Parkersburg, Pa., and Cpl. Jerry W. Nelson, 22, of Alva, Ky.

Staff Sgt. Clyde E. Cornelison, 29, of Coca Beach, Fla., was found innocent of mistreatment charges last week.

He and the other two drill instructors were accused of physical mistreatment by eight recruits. Charges were filed by parents of six of the recruits. All eight are from Great Falls, S.C.

Cornelison denied charges by two recruits that he hit them. He said he tapped another recruit on the head to instruct him about wearing his hat outside the barracks.

Cornelison said he touched the stomach of another recruit with his hand to check his condition. He said te recruit was overweight.

TEEN IDOL—VIETNAMESE STYLE

If U.S. Refused Viet Negotiations, Briton Doubts Christians' Support

London (AP) — A British clergyman said Sunday Christians should ask themselves whether they can still support the United States in Viet Nam if it is true that Washington had refused an offer to negotiate peace there.

The Rev. Paul Oestreicher, associate secretary of the British Council of Churches, said in a sermon at Westminster Abbey that if President Johnson refused to negotiate when the offer was made then "we are bound to raise our voices with those of Christians in Asia in deep concern."

"We are bound to ask our prime minister and, more especially, our foreign secretary whether they can still support this American war."

The U.S. State Department said last Monday the United States had rejected a North Vietnamese offer for talks a year ago because "all indications were that there was no serious intent on the other side."

People 'Sacrificed'

Oestreicher asked at one point in his sermon, whether the time had not come for Prime Minister Harold Wilson to go to the U.S. in the name of humanity with an appeal to stop the Viet Nam war.

"Our American friends must know that their noble aims of freedom cannot ever be fulfilled while a people is sacrificed on the altar of political idealism," he said.

"The horror of this week's news suggests that perhaps even tomorrow may be too late.

"If we so appeal to America we must hope and pray that the leaders of Soviet Russia will similarly appeal to the Vietnamese.

"It is the fruit of a generation of political blindness that today there is no one who can appeal to China and hope to be heard."

Victory Hopes Receding

The telegraph said prospects for an American victory were receding. It added:

"It is inconceivable that the Americans can be defeated militarily but valid doubts now arise as to whether they can win in the accepted sense of the word."

An Observer dispatch from Washington said bitterness over the war was rising in the United States as casualties mounted and "there is no end in sight."

An Observer editorial said:

"How can the carnage be stopped? It should be all the easier for the U.S. to make a concession now that she has demonstrated, by her massive military commitment, her determination not to be driven into humiliating defeat. As a first step, America could offer to stop the bombing of North Viet Nam and ask the North Vietnamese in return to stop infiltrating into the south. Given such a partial cease-fire, it might then be possible to move on to more serious negotiations. If he fails to do this, President Johnson risks throwing away the good will of all those who have been giving him the benefit of the doubt and ending up in a position of diplomatic isolation."

Toolmaker's Widow Given $740,000 For Death Of Fright

New York (AP) — A state supreme court justice has awarded $740,000 in damages to the widow of a toolmaker who died of a heart attack brought on by fright.

Salvatore Capossela, 53, of Whitestone, Queens, died May 7, 1958, after a car smashed through hedges of his front lawn and almost rammed into his house where he and his wife, Catherine, were sitting by a window.

Capossela went outside to talk to the driver in the car and experienced pains in his arms and chest. He returned to the house, collapsed, and 45 minutes later was dead.

Justice Nicholas M. Pette made the award to Mrs. Capossela based on estimates of what her husband would have earned had he lived retroactive to the date of his death, and on interest accumulated from the date of his death.

Defendants in the negligence suit were Bruce Kelley, 19 at the time of the incident, and his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Kelley, owner of the car.

In making the award, Justice Pette declared, "The medical testimony conclusively establishes that the death was due to a heart attack induced by the shock and fright."

Capossela had two daughters, Rosa and Catherine, now 24 and 16 years old.

British Bakers Threatening To Spread Strike

London (AP) — British bakers union officials threatened to make a nationwide strike out of scattered regional strikes that left more than a million families without bread this weekend.

The bakers said they were continuing with plans for "guerrilla strikes" across the country if their demands for a 30% wage increase and shorter work hours are not met.

The plans call for many workers now on strike to return to their jobs while those in areas now unaffected stop working.

Fumes Send 3 From Church To Hospital

Blue Springs (UPI)—Three persons were hospitalized in good condition at a Beatrice hospital Sunday after they were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes while attending church services here this morning at the Christian Church.

The three were among an estimated 30-40 persons who were in the church at the time. Several other persons were treated by a doctor.

Hospitalized were Glenn Pyle, 51, and Kenton Mann, 13, both of Blue Springs and Dee Carder of Valley Falls, Kan.

The mishap apparently was caused by a faulty exhaust on the furnace. Those most seriously affected by the fumes had attended Sunday school classes at 10 a.m.

The father of one of the youngsters, Bob Mann, said that the first indication that something was wrong came shortly after church services were started at 11 a.m. Mann said that his daughter, Janene, 7, became sick and was sent outside. A short time later others in the church became sick and Pyle at first appeared to be the only one seriously affected.

Pastor of the church is Benny Nelson of Lincoln.

This is the second such accident to the former president. Two years ago he slipped and fell and fractured his left hip.

Mrs. Emiko Murayama, 19, and in her ninth month of pregnancy, was dead on arrival at Red Cross Hospital in this central Japanese city after being hit by a truck, and doctors delivered the baby by caesarean section.

Swimming In Sicily

Palermo, Sicily (AP)—An unseasonable warm spell brought hundreds of persons to the beaches outside this Sicial city. Among them were many Scandinavian and German tourists who went swimming. Warm winds from Africa over the past several days have boosted the mercury to 77 degrees.

Parents Denied Pre-Trial Visit

Murmansk, USSR (UPI)—Soviet officials Sunday rejected the request by two American parents to see their son before he goes on trial in this Arctic city Monday.

Newcomb Mott, a 27-year-old book salesman from Sheffield, Mass. will face the Murmansk regional court Monday morning to answer charges that he illegally entered the Soviet Union. He could be sentenced to up to three years if convicted.

Mott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Mott, arrived here by airplane Saturday to attend the trial.

But their hopes of a pre-trial reunion were smashed when Murmansk officials said they were sticking to the Soviet rule that bars defendants from seeing relatives before the trial.

A pale winter dawn will be breaking over Murmansk — the world's biggest Arctic city —when young Mott's unprecedented trial begins. Legal experts said it was the first case of its kind in Soviet history involving an illegal border crossing by an American. Most such offenders are expelled without a trial, and diplomats said only the current Soviet-American tension over Viet Nam robbed Mott of such an easy escape.

It was understood Mott will tell the court he crossed the border without a visa at a point where 13,000 Scandinavian citizens were allowed to do so this year.

Thus he was expected to plead neither "guilty" nor "not guilty," but to admit to crossing with good intent, believing that the same privileges available to Scandinavians also applied to other foreigners.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, struck an apparent blow at this defense Sunday by reporting that Norwegians warned him he had no legal grounds for visiting Soviet territory. He ignored the warning."

Mott's Soviet lawyer, Boris Zolutukhin, said, however, that of the four or five witnesses expected to testify, all were Soviet citizens. There were no Norwegians among them.

Mott learned only Saturday that his parents would be in the courtroom. Their presence was revealed by Zolutukhin when the two men met for four hours in the Murmansk city jail to discsss trial plans.

"He was very glad," Zolutukhin said.

Ironically, the Motts searched Murmansk for Zolutukhin when they arrived Saturday night, but were told he had not yet reached the city. Actually, he had arrived earlier and was staying at a different hotel than expected.

The young bespectacled lawyer said Mott was in good health and "in as good spirits as anybody under such circumstances. He was most interested in the court procedure."

"We will hope for the best," the attorney said "but we should be prepared for the worst." He said it was his first defense of a foreigner.

Both the attorney and Tass said the trial would last about two days. But two American reporters who came here for the trial were given visas good for only one day.

Soviets Ask British To Join Condemning U.S. Laos Action

Moscow (AP)—The Soviet Union charged the United States Sunday night with "continued aggressive actions" in Laos and warned of possible "serious consequences." It proposed to Britain a joined condemnation of U.S. military activities in the Southeast Asia kingdom.

Britain and the Soviet Union serve as co-chairmen of the 14-nation Geneva conference that set up a three-headed Laotian government in 1962 in an effort to take the country out of the cold war. There was no immediate word of British reaction to the proposal, handed to the British embassy in Moscow Nov. 18.

The Russians charged that American planes operating from bases in Laos and Thialand bombed and straffed two Laotian provinces killing civilians and causing grave material damage.

A Soviet statement said:

"Such actions of the United States undertaken in the context of widening the war in Viet Nam gravely endanger peace in Laos and aggravate the situation throughout Southeast Asia."

"Intensified armed intervention of the United States in the affairs of Laos raises new obstacles to a peaceful settlement in that country which is possible only on the condition of respect for and strict observance of the 1962 Geneva agreements."

Wagner Enters Hassle Over University Tuition

New York (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner stepped into the expanding administrative controversy at City University Sunday night with a plea that no immediate action be taken on the resignations of four top officials.

The mayor made it clear he was not taking sides in the dispute over free tuition, state versus city financing and administration loyalty to the board of higher education.

He said he wanted to end the "action and counter-action," in favor of "an orderly and responsible discussion."

An aide said Wagner is to meet Monday with officials of the city board of higher education, and with officials of the 118-year-old university system, which traditionally has been free to qualified residents of New York City.

Undivided Fealty

The controversy boiled over last Wednesday when the board of higher education demanded the "undivided fealty' of university officials, some of whom had publicly voiced their own views on the subject of finances.

The board's move was followed Saturday night by the abrupt resignations of Chancellor Albert H. Bowker and Dean of Studies Harry L. Levy. The presidents of two colleges within the City University system, Dr. John J. Meng of Hunter College and Dr. Harry Gideonse of Brooklyn College, said they would resign at the end of the academic year.

Meng, in his letter, said the board's request for loyalty was "insulting," and added: "The undivided fealty of this member . . . may be earned but it can be neither coerced nor purchased."

Lack of Confidence

Bowker commented:

"When the chief administrative officer of a university finds that, however unjustifiedly, his board of trustees has manifested a lack of confidence in him, it is my judgment that his real usefulness to the university is at an end, and he should resign. I accordingly resign . . ."

Earlier this month, Bowker advanced a plan for a "technical" tuition fee, to be paid by the state, that would finance a $400 million construction program.

When the board called for administration loyalty, it also reaffirmed its "adherence to the principle of free tuition."

Reaction to the resignations came from several groups Sunday, including Queens College President Joseph P. McMurray and the legislative committee of the City University. All asked the board to take no action pending some sort of discussion or mediation of the dispute.

Sheik Costs India

New Delhi (AP) — The Indian government reports it spent $4.793 to keep Sheik Mohammed Abdullah, a Kashmiri nationalist leader, in detention the past six months but an official explained: "Keeping the way of life Sheik Abdullah is used to, the amount is not considered to be excessive."

Darien Youths Caught In Teen Party Scandal

A team of Darien police made the arrests at the apartment of Michael V. Smith, 20, who was convicted of negligent homicide and reckless driving in the death last year of 17-year-old Nancy Hitchings, daughter of an American Airlines executive.

Police said they found in Smith's apartment "a quantity of a substance believed to be marijuana." It was turned over to the state laboratory for testing.

Serving Minors

Out of Smith's trial last October came the arrest of 13 adults — some of them socially prominent couples—on charges of serving liquor to minors at two coming-out parties on the night of the auto accident.

One of the girls arrested at the apartment early Sunday morning was 15 years old. She was turned over to juvenile authorities and her name was not disclosed.

Police said her presence there led to charges against the six boys of injury or risk of injury to a child in addition to the narcotics charge.

Two other teen-age girls picked up at the apartment were identified as Marilynn Zodda, 16, and Judy Melfi, 19, both of Darien.

The other boys arrested were Thomas B. Alpert, 19, and William L. Weir, 20, both of Darien; Allen G. Lanier, 19, of New York City and Glen M. Carter, 20, of New Canaan.

Carter was a witness for the prosecution at Smith's trial.

All eight arrested raised bond. Smith and White's bond was $5,000 each. Bond for the others was $3,000 each.

They were released for appearance in circuit court Jan. 4. All were charged with violation of the uniform state narcotics drug act.

During his trial, Circuit Court Judge Rodney S. Eielson ordered the arrests of the adults involved in the parties. And he said the guilt for Miss Hitchings' death was in every Darien living room.

A psychiatrist and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. George Hughes, appealed to the state supreme court their $500 fines on the charge of serving liquor to minors. The court declined to review their cases.

After that, the others who were convicted did not appeal Charges against 5 of the 13, including two caterers and a bartender, eventually were dropped.

2 Persons Hurt As Autos Collide

Two Lincolnites were treated and released from St. Elizabeth Hospital following an automobile accident at 27th and J Sunday.

Lourdes Vidal, 6, of 332 T and Jose D. Mendez, 21, of 1601 So. 22nd were treated for scrapes, cuts and abrasions, police said.

Parents Denied Pre-Trial Visit

Murmansk, USSR (UPI)—Soviet officials Sunday rejected the request by two American parents to see their son before he goes on trial in this Arctic city Monday.

Newcomb Mott, a 27-year-old book salesman from Sheffield, Mass. will face the Murmansk regional court Monday morning to answer charges that he illegally entered the Soviet Union. He could be sentenced to up to three years if convicted.

Mott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Mott, arrived here by airplane Saturday to attend the trial.

But their hopes of a pre-trial reunion were smashed when Murmansk officials said they were sticking to the Soviet rule that bars defendants from seeing relatives before the trial.

A pale winter dawn will be breaking over Murmansk — the world's biggest Arctic city —when young Mott's unprecedented trial begins. Legal experts said it was the first case of its kind in Soviet history involving an illegal border crossing by an American. Most such offenders are expelled without a trial, and diplomats said only the current Soviet-American tension over Viet Nam robbed Mott of such an easy escape.

It was understood Mott will tell the court he crossed the border without a visa at a point where 13,000 Scandinavian citizens were allowed to do so this year.

Thus he was expected to plead neither "guilty" nor "not guilty," but to admit to crossing with good intent, believing that the same privileges available to Scandinavians also applied to other foreigners.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, struck an apparent blow at this defense Sunday by reporting that Norwegians warned him he had no legal grounds for visiting Soviet territory. He ignored the warning."

Mott's Soviet lawyer, Boris Zolutukhin, said, however, that of the four or five witnesses expected to testify, all were Soviet citizens. There were no Norwegians among them.

Mott learned only Saturday that his parents would be in the courtroom. Their presence was revealed by Zolutukhin when the two men met for four hours in the Murmansk city jail to discsss trial plans.

"He was very glad," Zolutukhin said.

Ironically, the Motts searched Murmansk for Zolutukhin when they arrived Saturday night, but were told he had not yet reached the city. Actually, he had arrived earlier and was staying at a different hotel than expected.

The young bespectacled lawyer said Mott was in good health and "in as good spirits as anybody under such circumstances. He was most interested in the court procedure."

"We will hope for the best," the attorney said "but we should be prepared for the worst." He said it was his first defense of a foreigner.

Both the attorney and Tass said the trial would last about two days. But two American reporters who came here for the trial were given visas good for only one day.

Soviets Ask British To Join Condemning U.S. Laos Action

Moscow (AP)—The Soviet Union charged the United States Sunday night with "continued aggressive actions" in Laos and warned of possible "serious consequences." It proposed to Britain a joined condemnation of U.S. military activities in the Southeast Asia kingdom.

Britain and the Soviet Union serve as co-chairmen of the 14-nation Geneva conference that set up a three-headed Laotian government in 1962 in an effort to take the country out of the cold war. There was no immediate word of British reaction to the proposal, handed to the British embassy in Moscow Nov. 18.

The Russians charged that American planes operating from bases in Laos and Thialand bombed and strafed two Laotian provinces killing civilians and causing grave material damage.

A Soviet statement said:

"Such actions of the United States undertaken in the context of widening the war in Viet Nam gravely endanger peace in Laos and aggravate the situation throughout Southeast Asia."

"Intensified armed intervention of the United States in the affairs of Laos raises new obstacles to a peaceful settlement in that country which is possible only on the condition of respect for and strict observance of the 1962 Geneva agreements."

Wagner Enters Hassle Over University Tuition

New York (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner stepped into the expanding administrative controversy at City University Sunday night with a plea that no immediate action be taken on the resignations of four top officials.

The mayor made it clear he was not taking sides in the dispute over free tuition, state versus city financing and administration loyalty to the board of higher education.

He said he wanted to end the "action and counteraction." in favor of "an orderly and responsible discussion."

An aide said Wagner is to meet Monday with officials of the city board of higher education, and with officials of the 118-year-old university system, which traditionally has been free to qualified residents of New York City.

Undivided Fealty

The controversy boiled over last Wednesday when the board of higher education demanded the "undivided fealty" of university officials, some of whom had publicly voiced their own views on the subject of finances.

The board's move was followed Saturday night by the abrupt resignations of Chancellor Albert H. Bowker and Dean of Studies Harry L. Levy. The presidents of two colleges within the City University system, Dr. John J. Meng of Hunter College and Dr. Harry Gideonse of Brooklyn College, said they would resign at the end of the academic year.

Meng, in his letter, said the board's request for loyalty was "insulting," and added: "The undivided fealty of this member . . . may be earned but it can be neither coerced nor purchased."

Lack of Confidence

Bowker commented:

"When the chief administrative officer of a university finds that, however unjustifiedly, his board of trustees has manifested a lack of confidence in him, it is my judgment that his real usefulness to the university is at an end, and he should resign. I accordingly resign . . ."

Earlier this month, Bowker advanced a plan for a "technical" tuition fee, to be paid by the state, that would finance a $400 million construction program.

When the board called for administration loyalty, it also reaffirmed its "adherence to the principle of free tuition."

Reaction to the resignations came from several groups Sunday, including Queens College President Joseph P. McMurray and the legislative committee of the City University. All asked the board to take no action pending some sort of discussion or mediation of the dispute.

Off-Target Bottle Costly For Youth

St. Paul, Minn. (AP)—Hilton Kennedy, 20, St. Paul, was charged with malicious destruction of property and drunkenness after police said he chased a youth down the center of a street and threw a quart beer bottle.

The bottle missed the youth and smashed through the window of a police squad car.

Sheik Costs India

New Delhi (AP) — The Indian government reports it spent $4,793 to keep Sheik Mohammed Abdullah, a Kashmiri nationalist leader, in detention the past six months but an official explained: "Keeping the way of life Sheik Abdullah is used to, the amount is not considered to be excessive."

Darien Youths Caught In Teen Party Scandal

A team of Darien police made the arrests at the apartment of Michael V. Smith, 20, who was convicted of negligent homicide and reckless driving in the death last year of 17-year-old Nancy Hitchings, daughter of an American Airlines executive.

Smith appealed that case to the appellate division of the state's circuit court and was free pending a decision.

Police said they found in Smith's apartment "a quantity of a substance believed to be marijuana." It was turned over to the state laboratory for testing.

Serving Minors

Out of Smith's trial last October came the arrest of 13 adults — some of them socially prominent couples—on charges of serving liquor to minors at two coming-out parties on the night of the auto accident.

One of the girls arrested at the apartment early Sunday morning was 15 years old. She was turned over to juvenile authorities and her name was not disclosed.

Police said her presence there led to charges against the six boys of injury or risk of injury to a child in addition to the narcotics charge.

Police said they had been watching Smith's apartment for some time. Smith's roommate, Jack S. White, 19, was one of those arrested.

Two other teen-age girls picked up at the apartment were identified as Marilynn Zodda, 16, and Judy Melfi, 19, both of Darien.

The other boys arrested were Thomas B. Alpert, 19, and William L. Weir, 20, both of Darien; Allen G. Lanier, 19, of New York City and Glen M. Carter, 20, of New Canaan.

Carter was a witness for the prosecution at Smith's trial.

All eight arrested raised bond. Smith and White's bond was $5,000 each. Bond for the others was $3,000 each.

They were released for appearance in circuit court Jan. 4. All were charged with violation of the uniform state narcotics drug act.

During his trial, Circuit Court Judge Rodney S. Eielson ordered the arrests of the adults involved in the parties. And he said the guilt for Miss Hitchings' death was in every Darien living room.

A psychiatrist and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. George Hughes, appealed to the state supreme court their $500 fines on the charge of serving liquor to minors. The court declined to review their cases.

After that, the others who were convicted did not appeal. Charges against 5 of the 13, including two caterers and a bartender, eventually were dropped.

2 Persons Hurt As Autos Collide

Two Lincolnites were treated and released from St. Elizabeth Hospital following an automobile accident at 27th and J Sunday.

Lourdes Vidal, 6, of 332 T and Jose D. Mendez, 21, of 1601 So. 22nd were treated for scrapes, cuts and abrasions, police said.

Presbyterians Urged To Stop Reproducing

Lomita, Calif. (AP)—A pastor suggested Sunday to fellow Presbyterians that they stop having children because of the threat of world overpopulation.

Instead, the Rev. Eldon Durham of St. Mark's Church suggested that Presbyterians "begin to constitute families by . . . adopting the unwanted, the disinherited, the rejected."

The pastor, a father of four, acknowledged in an interview that his suggestion is "radical and sensational" and "not likely to be heard by many Presbyterians."

Let Someone Else

But, he added, he feels there is a great propensity among persons who lament the threat of overpopulation to "let someone else do something about it."

Commonly heard, he said, are complaints like why don't the Indians, the Chinese, the Catholics or the poor do something about it?

"I am simply proposing that Presbyterians do something that is within reach," said the Rev. Durham, St. Mark's pastor for 15 years.

No Blow at Family

Outlining his proposal from the pulpit Sunday, he told the Congregation his adoption plan "is not a blow at the family. Family life would be maintained and promoted without procreation for Presbyterians."

He said he didn't believe many in his congregation would be willing to be told what to do in their family life.

"There are private areas, agreed," he said. "But against this looms the spectre, just over the horizon, of the state regulating population."

In a world where too many people are a major problem, he said, "Persons not only become cheap, but a liability, and are likely to be treated as such."

The Rev. Mr. Durham said he thinks it's long past time that the church "started admitting out loud that sex is for pleasure as well as procreation."

Madison (AP) — Former Norfolk police chief Otis J. Knotwell was bound over to District Court for jury trial on four counts of public embezzlement.

County Judge Bruce Henning fixed $2,500 bond.

Vincent Kirby, Knotwell's attorney asked that Knotwell appear during the current term of District Court and asked that transcripts of the preliminary hearing be prepared for Dec. 3.

Knotwell was charged in connection with shortages in various city funds collected by the Norfolk Police Department. Shortages in all amounted to about $10,000.

During the preliminary hearing which lasted more than two days, 341 items were submitted as evidence.

Presbyterians Urged To Stop Reproducing

Lomita, Calif. (AP)—A pastor suggested Sunday to fellow Presbyterians that they stop having children because of the threat of world overpopulation

Instead, the Rev. Eldon Durham of St. Mark's Church suggested that Presbyterians "begin to constitute families by . . . adopting the unwanted, the disinherited, the rejected."

The pastor, a father of four, acknowledged in an interview that his suggestion is "radical and sensational" and "not likely to be heard by many Presbyterians."

Let Someone Else

But, he added, he feels there is a great propensity among persons who lament the threat of overpopulation to "let someone else do something about it."

Commonly heard, he said, are complaints like why don't the Indians, the Chinese, the Catholics or the poor do something about it?

"I am simply proposing that Presbyterians do something that is within reach," said the Rev. Durham, St Mark's pastor for 15 years.

No Blow at Family

Outlining his proposal from the pulpit Sunday, he told the Congregation his adoption plan "is not a blow at the family. Family life would be maintained and promoted without procreation for Presbyterians."

He said he didn't believe many in his congregation would be willing to be told what to do in their family life.

"There are private areas, agreed," he said. "But against this looms the spectre, just over the horizon, of the state regulating population."

In a world where too many people are a major problem, he said, "Persons not only become cheap, but a liability, and are likely to be treated as such."

The Rev. Mr. Durham said he thinks it's long past time that the church "started admitting out loud that sex is for pleasure as well as procreation."

EX-VEEP GARNER IS 97

Knotwell Bound Over To District Court For Trial

Madison (AP) — Former Norfolk police chief Otis J. Knotwell was bound over to District Court for jury trial on four counts of public embezzlement.

County Judge Bruce Henning fixed $2,500 bond.

Vincent Kirby, Knotwell's attorney asked that Knotwell appear during the current term of District Court and asked that transcripts of the preliminary hearing be prepared for Dec 3.

Knotwell was charged in connection with shortages in various city funds collected by the Norfolk Police Department. Shortages in all amounted to about $10,000.

During the preliminary hearing which lasted more than two days, 341 items were submitted as evidence.

New Delhi Poles

New Delhi (AP) — A number of New Delhi's streets had become too congested, so they were widened. Now the city has another problem: Light poles which were moved back are amidst tall trees and the streets are considered to be too dark.

If you have some money, you view with alarm,
Why not invest it in a real good farm?
The soil is deep, it is fertile and rich,
Not a hill or gully or even a ditch.
If you like the sound of a home on the range,
Drive out to the Goehner Interchange.
Cross over the bridge and if you like what you see,
Stop in and visit with Florence and me.
The farm is a good one, this is no bull. 23

If you have some money, you view with alarm,
Why not invest it in a real good farm?
The soil is deep, it is fertile and rich,
Not a hill or gully or even a ditch.
If you like the sound of a home on the range,
Drive out to the Goehner Interchange,
Cross over the bridge and if you like what you see
Stop in and visit with Florence and me.
So dig up that bucket, and be sure its clear full.
The farm is a good one, this is no bull. 23

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

So hot is the core of the sun—16 million degrees Centigrade—that a pinhead of its material would emit enough heat to kill a man 100 miles away.

Pigeons and their relatives in the Old World sandgrouse family share the unique ability to drink water like a horse, with heads down and bill immersed. Other bills must raise their heads to swallow.

Jericho, Jordan, famed as the lowest city on earth, was the site in biblical days of Herod the Great's winter palace. Cleopatra once collected revenues from palm and balsam trees of Jericho.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
